DREYFUS TO BE FREE.

Even Now May Be Out of Prison.

MINISTERS DECIDE ON PARDON.

It Was Reported In Rennes That He Had Already Been Released—May Be Sent Abroad—Fight Against Generals to Continue.

LONDON, Sept. 20.—The Rennes correspondent of The Daily Telegraph said in part:

"There is reason to believe that Dreyfus is already out of prison."

PARIS, Sept. 20.—The pardoning of Captain Dreyfus does not drop the curtain on the drama. The Dreyfusards are determined to pursue the campaign against the generals and other officers of the general staff who have lied and committed gross illegalities in order to keep the prison door closed on the victim.

The campaign for his release has given the Socialist party a weapon of which they will avail themselves to the utmost, and Dreyfusism will be extended more into socialistic agitation. Moreover, the Zola trial and Mme. Henry's prosecution of Joseph Reinach for defaming the memory of her husband will shortly come on, and they will be used by both sides as levers again to excite public feeling.

Pardoning Dreyfus, therefore, only closes one act of the drama, and France will probably again find herself in the throes of party passion before the Paris exposition opens its doors next May.

The council of ministers decided to pardon Dreyfus in principle. The pardon will take effect in a few days. Dreyfus has relinquished his appeal for a reversal of the judgment of the court-martial.

"In principle" is an idiom sometimes used in the semi-official announcements of forthcoming action. It seems to have but slight bearing on the matter except, perhaps, that it implies the fulfillment of various formalities before the pardon.

There is much remark here on the strange coincident of the death of M. Scheurer-Kestner, the first champion of Dreyfus, and to whom Dreyfus will virtually owe his freedom, on the very day the cabinet decided to pardon the prisoner.

It is said that Dreyfus will be sent abroad before the promulgation of his pardon in order to avoid demonstration.

YELLOW FEVER ALARMING.

About Thirty Cases a Day Developed at Key West—Mortality Low—New Case at New Orleans.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—The yellow fever situation at Key West is regarded as grave. Since the first case was reported about three weeks ago the epidemic has been steadily growing until there are about 400 cases. New cases appeared at the rate of about 30 a day, but the mortality is low. Fifty-four cases and two deaths were reported for Sunday and Monday. Attendant Hall of the marine hospital staff developed the disease, and he has been isolated. As Key West is situated below the frost line the epidemic will have to run its course. The marine hospital service has been directing its efforts to confining the epidemic to the island and has been rewarded with signal success.

Only one infected person is known to have escaped and he was discovered at Miami and isolated. He has since recovered.

The treatment of the cases in Key West is entirely under the supervision of the Florida state board of health. The marine hospital service is simply enforcing quarantine regulations with a view to preventing the spread of the disease.

One new case of fever was reported to the surgeon general from New Orleans.

One Death; 31 New Cases.

KEY WEST, Sept. 20.—Thirty-one new cases of yellow fever were reported in 24 hours and one death.

McCoy Knocked Out O'Donnell.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—O'Donnell was knocked out in the sixth round by Kid McCoy.

Pennsylvania Jr. O. U. A. M.

SCRANTON, Pa., Sept. 20.—The state council of the Junior Order United American Mechanics opened its fortieth annual convention here. Councilor Bowers' report called attention particularly to the efforts and methods to increase the membership. Secretary Deemer's report showed that five new councils were instituted and nine reinstated during the year ending Aug. 31, that there were now 750 councils with a membership of 79,596, an increase of 2,675. During the year the state council received $14,597.07. The receipts of the subordinate councils were $707,608.87; they have $925,773.88 invested and $167,107.50 in their treasury, while $291,089.65 was paid out for relief and funeral benefits. State Treasurer Calver's report showed a balance of $5,982.52 in the treasury of the state council.

Reported Fever Under Control.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—Surgeon General Sternberg received a dispatch from Havana saying that the yellow fever outbreak was fully under control. The number of cases in all the hospitals in Havana were nine soldiers and 11 civilians. There have been no new cases at Cabanas garrison since the 9th.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—Admiral Schley will go to New York as a private citizen to attend the Dewey celebration and will return here in time to be one of the guests at the president's dinner to Admiral Dewey on the night of October 3.

ALMOST A CATASTROPHE.

Details of Sinking of U. S. Transport. Fine Discipline, but Poor Seamanship—Kindness of Japs.

YOKOHAMA, Sept. 8, via Victoria, B. C., Sept. 20.—Interesting details are at hand of the wreck of the American transport Morgan City, in the inland sea of Japan. It appears that it came very near being an appalling catastrophe. Striking upon a reef about 3 o'clock in the morning, the ship remained fast until daylight, when, by adopting the expedient of pushing the men alternately from one side to the other, the ship was rolled from the rocks into deep water, where she at once began to fill rapidly.

She headed for the shore of the island of Inoshima, several miles distant, sinking perceptably with every yard of progress. She reached the beach barely a minute before otherwise going under. The discipline of the men was admirable, and all were gotten ashore in safety. The seamanship shown appears not to have been so admirable, as no precautions were taken to make the boat fast to the shore after beaching. Time was spent in removing stores, the transport lying very nearly bows under, but afloat in the after part. In the afternoon, without warning, she slid off the steep beach and sank in about six fathoms.

Almost instantly came aid from the Japanese authorities, the cruiser Yosohomo being at once dispatched and the Red Cross society sending an expedition. The troops are loud in their appreciation of Japanese kindness.

A pleasant episode of the shipwrecked men was the passing of the Empess of India, which stopped for some hours and proffered everything which could be done in the way of aid.

LAUTERBACH AND MOSS.

They Had Several Rows When Former Was Before Mazet Committee.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—Edward Lauterbach, counsel for the Ramapo company, was on the stand before the Mazet committee. He was asked to tell whether the Ramapo stockholders had decided to submit a list of their names Mr. Lauterbach stated that he had been instructed not to submit the list on any other terms than those previously named, which were that the names should not be made public.

Mr. Lauterbach and Mr. Moss had several wordy rows during the examination. The witness said he would much rather see a Tammany man elected mayor than a man who belonged to no organization. Later, he was given an opportunity to explain his "pro-Tammany" speech, as he called it. He said that his words merely expressed a preference for an organization nomination, even by a hostile organization, to a hybrid one.

Silas B. Dutcher, president of the Ramapo company, who was called to the stand, declared that he had no such documents as he had been called upon to produce before the committee. Mr. Dutcher declined to answer a number of questions put to him, and was unable to say where the books of the company were.

Blind Strikers Returned to Work.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 20.—After a strike lasting 16 weeks the blind broommakers, who had not previously done so, returned to their work at the Pennsylvania Working Home for Blind Men. There were 59 of them, the other 50 having previously gone back. The blind men were granted an increase in wages. Superintendent Hall, whom they wanted discharged, is retained pending an investigation of the charges against him.

Some Discharged, Others Arrested.

CARTERVILLE, Ills., Sept. 20.—Matters have been very quiet here. The coroner's jury is still in session and may be for two or three days yet. Company B of Newton arrived. About 50 Carterville people were summoned to Marion as witnesses in behalf of the 19 union miners under arrest there. After hearing a few witnesses all the prisoners were discharged. Deputy Sheriff Odum of Marion made nine arrests for complicity in the shooting Sunday.

SALISBURY IS CALM.

Meanwhile Troops Are Rushing to South Africa.

CABINET MEETING ON FRIDAY.

England's Quiet Attitude Considered In European Capitals as Being Assumed to Cause Delay Until Troops Arrive. Alarm In Natal Declared Unwarranted.

LONDON, Sept. 20.—Summonses were issued for a cabinet council, which, it is understood, will be held Friday. This is regarded as the result of the visit of the premier, Lord Salisbury, to the foreign office. Joseph Chamberlain, the secretary of state for the colonies, was present in the building at the same time, and as a private doorway connects the offices it was presumed that the summonses were the result of their joint deliberations.

The lack of all excitement in official circles bears evidence to the deliberate manner in which the highest officials are handling the crisis. Nor is it by any means certain that the cabinet council will adopt extreme measures, in spite of the uncompromising nature of the Boer reply.

This deliberation on the part of the government was interpreted, not only in London but in other European capitals, as a desire on the part of Great Britain to gain time while the transports with soldiers are hurrying to Cape Colony.

Even rumors of a movement of the Boers across the Natal border apparently fail to excite the military authorities here, who professed at least not to fear such a contingency for the present.

The royal West Sussex regiment left for Malta, where it will replace the First border regiment, which goes by the same steamer to Natal.

The British first class protected cruisers Terrible and Powerful were ordered to the Cape. They have reliefs on board capable of forming a naval brigade of 1,000 men.

The steamer Jelunga will take 500 troops bound for Natal today, and she will embark a rifle brigade at the island of Crete for the Cape.

According to a dispatch from Durban, Natal, the premier of the colony says that the alarm of the people of Natal at the unprotected conditions of the border towns is quite unwarranted, and that efforts to incite the Zulus failed.

The lull in the crisis gives opportunity for the continuance of unofficial negotiations. The government of the Netherlands is privately exerting its influence in favor of a pacific solution, and it is understood that President Kruger, through Dr. Leyds, the plenipotentiary of the South African republic to the European governments, has unofficially approached three powers with a view to their intervention.

Sir Alfred Milner has addressed further inquiries to President Steyn of the Orange Free State. Whatever the official attitude of the Orange Free State may be, the temper of its burghers, judging from numerous meetings held in Bloemfontein and elsewhere, is to assist the Transvaal actively.

The Free State commandant in Pretoria are discussing the position with the Transvaal commandant general, and the meeting of the Free State volksraad tomorrow will have an important influence on the situation.

A curious rumor is spreading in the lower ranks of the army that Great Britain will be involved with Afghanistan as well as the Transvaal.

The correspondent of The Daily Mail at Pietermaritzburg, Natal, telegraphs that the military authorities there have received a warning from Johannesburg that the Boers have purchased considerable quantities of cyanide of potassium for the purpose of poisoning the streams in the Transvaal likely to be used by British troops.

Other special dispatches report various details of preparations for war on both sides.

Transports Reached Manila.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—General Otis informed the war department of the arrival at Manila of the transport Ohio with the men of the wrecked transport Morgan City. She left two sick men at Nagasaki. The City of Sydney also reached Manila. There were no deaths during the voyage, but one man deserted near Nagasaki.

Lieutenant Colonel Miley Dead.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—Lieutenant Colonel John D. Miley, inspector general of volunteers, died at Manila. The information reached the war department in a cablegram from General Otis. His death was due to cerebral meningitis attendant on typhoid fever. Colonel Miley's rank in the regular army was first lieutenant Second artillery.

Satisfactory Test of Armor.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—A number of Russian and American naval officers went to the Indianhead proving grounds to witness the test of Krupp armor plate, representing a large quantity of the armor of the Russian battleship now building at the Cramp yards in Philadelphia. Admiral O'Neil's observations were with a view to presenting the matter to congress in connection with the question of furnishing armor for the new United States battleships and armored cruisers. The officials of both countries regarded the test as highly satisfactory.

Successors to Cornelius Vanderbilt.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—William Rockefeller was elected a member of the board of directors of the New York Central Railroad company, to succeed the late Cornelius Vanderbilt. William K. Vanderbilt succeeds his brother, the late Cornelius Vanderbilt, as president of the New York and Harlem railroad.

Soldier's Death Reported.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—Gen. Brooke reported to the war department the death of Private Bob Roberts, Company M, Tenth cavalry, who was killed by a fall at Canto, Santiago, on the 16th inst.

GUERIN SURRENDERS.

Government Threatened to Turn the Hose on Him.

PARIS, Sept. 20—[By Associated Press]—According to agreement, M. Guerin has surrendered. Precisely at the hour appointed, a captain of the municipal guards rapped at the door of Fort Chabrol. There was a moment of expectation and then the door opened. M. Guerin calmly presented himself, meekly surrendered and was driven to the police depot in an open cab, seated beside the captain of the guards. His companions were allowed to go free. Thus the six weeks' siege ended in sublimely ridiculous style. The night was well chosen by the government, as the excitement over the capture of the fort would inevitably divert attention from the pardon extended to Dreyfus. The plan was to attack the building and arrest Guerin and his band. The government had given him until 4 o'clock to surrender and had a regular army to assault the fort if he refused. Troops, municipal guards, mounted and on foot, and policemen to the number of nearly one thousand, were dispatched to cordon all the streets within the radius of a quarter of a mile of Fort Chabrol. The authorities had planned to flood Guerin's house with water. All the buildings in the vicinity are higher than the one occupied by Guerin, and firemen were placed in their upper stories, prepared to bombard the fort with streams of water at a given signal, while below in the streets the engines were roaring as the firemen fed the furnaces to keep the steam at highest pressure.

AT CHICKAMAUGA.

Governor Mount, of Indiana, Delivers an Address.

CHATTANOOGA, Sept. 20.—[By Associated Press]—Judge D. B. McConnell, president of the Indiana Chickamauga Park Commission, introduced Governor Mount at the dedication exercises today. The governor said he deemed it a signal honor to stand today on the very spot where thirty-five years ago he fought as a common soldier and speak in memory of the brave men of a great state. Indiana furnished two division commanders and eleven brigade commanders in the battle of Chickamauga. Twenty-nine regiments of infantry, three regiments of cavalry and eight batteries of artillery from Indiana participated in that battle, and Indiana soldiers were the first to engage in this fight and the last to leave the field.

From six to eight thousand people, many who were from Ohio, Indiana and Illinois attended the dedication. The state of Indiana turned over to the federal government one hundred and thirteen markers and monuments, costing about $80,000. Governor Mount made the presentation speech, and General H. V. Boynton received them on behalf of the secretary of war. An address was also made by General James R. Carnahan. Following this was the dedication of the Wilder brigade monument.

DREYFUS PARDONED.

Leaves his Prison at Rennes this Morning.

RENNES, Sept. 20.—[By Associated Press]—Dreyfus left his prison at 3 o'clock this morning, and took a train for Nantes. His departure created no excitement whatever, and very few people in the city were aware of it. His destination is known only to a few relatives, but it is generally believed that he will go to Italy or Greece, where he will remain until he recovers his health. Demange, who assisted in defending Dreyfus, said the etiquette of the French bar forbade any expression of opinion on a decree of pardon, but he added emphatically: "Pardon can only be accepted as a preliminary for vindication. The appeal has not yet been withdrawn, if possible, it won't be. At any rate, the fight is not ended, though I admit details of the future plans are undecided."

THREE THOUSAND DEAD.

Awful Havoc of a Typhoon in Japan.

VICTORIA, B. C., Sept. 20.—[By Associated Press]—Over three thousand persons are dead and missing as a result of the recent typhoon in Japan, according to advices brought by the steamer Empress of India. Much damage to shipping was reported. Information has also been received of the serious illness of Empress dowager of China, and the recall of Li Hung Chang to power.

TRANSPORTS DELAYED.

General Otis Reports a Typhoon at Manila.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—[By Associated Press]—General Otis reports a typhoon prevailing, with a rain fall in the last forty-eight hours of 8.2 inches, and for the last twenty-four hours of 6.3 inches. This will delay the shipments of volunteers. The Iowa will probably sail tomorrow. The Tennessee is detained south by the storm.

PROPOSAL OF REBELS.

Cabinet Officials Don't Expect Much to Result.

ROOT IS NOT VERY SANGUINE.

The Rebels Proposed That a General Be Admitted Through Our Lines—The Request Granted Also Offered to Send In American Prisoners.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—Three members of the cabinet, alluding to General Otis's dispatch regarding a conference with the insurgents, agreed, after the meeting of the cabinet, during which the dispatch was considered, in expressing the opinion that too much significance should not be attached to Aguinaldo's proposal. Secretary Root himself said that so many similar conferences in the past had come to naught that he doubted very much whether this one meant anything toward the establishment of peace and good order in the islands.

The text of the dispatch as made public by the war department is as follows:

MANILA, Sept. 19.

Adjutant General, Washington:

MacArthur reports from Angeles visit of two insurgent officers with request for permission to send into our lines American prisoners and to send to Manila prominent insurgent general officer for conference. The request granted and insurgent officers at Angeles return north this morning with information. OTIS.

The protest of the Chinese government against General Otis' order excluding the Chinese from the Philippines is said not to have come up at the cabinet meeting.

The war department approved the action of General Otis in refusing to allow Spanish ships to go to ports controlled by the insurgents to take away Spanish prisoners. The ships, however, will be allowed to proceed to such ports under the escort of vessels of the United States. The transfer of the Spanish prisoners to the ships will be under the direction and control of United States officers. The war department will allow no communication between Aguinaldo and his agents and the Spaniards who may go to bring away the Spanish prisoners.

While no names were mentioned in the dispatch from Otis it is inferred that included in the list of American prisoners to whom the negotiations relate is Lieutenant Gilmore and the 15 men of the Yorktown who were captured by the insurgents on the east coast of Luzon. Major Rockefeller, who was captured beyond the American lines one night shortly after his arrival in the Philippines and half a dozen private soldiers who have been reported as missing.

PRELATES DIDN'T PROTEST.

Catholic Dignitaries Consider Desecration of Philippine Churches Work of Mere Lawless Persons.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—President McKinley recently received a protest against the alleged desecration of Catholic church property in the Philippines, submitted by an organization called the Metropolitan Trust society.

The regular church authorities have taken no action relative to the Philippines, as this has never been submitted to their jurisdiction. Moreover, they have observed with satisfaction that the archbishop of Manila has co-operated with the military administration, one of the latest evidences of this co-operation being the issuance of a decree including the Catholic church holidays among those to be observed in the public schools. The reported desecrations have been treated as the work of lawless individuals, having no connenance with the commanding officers. In case of an authoritative protest it would be doubtless made through the archbishop of Manila or through the aposrolic delegate. No reports of desecrations have ever come from these sources.

AN IMPORTANT DECISION.

Judge Williams Holds Stockholders' Property May Be Attached to Enforce Statutory Liability.

COLUMBUS, Sept. 20.—Judge C. C. Williams of the chancery court in a decision held that attachment may be made on property of the stockholders of a company to enforce the statutory liability. The decision was rendered in overruling a motion by B. A. Hough and Henry W. Pulham, brokers of New York, who sought to dissolve an attachment suit brought against them by the Dayton Manufacturing company on the ground that they are non-residents of Ohio, and statutory liability is not a proper claim to be collected by attachment.

The decision of Judge Williams affects New York parties holding about $5,000,000 of the stock of the old Columbus, Shawnee and Hocking Railroad company.

Congregationalist Church Council.

BOSTON, Sept. 20.—A large delegation of Congregationalists who are to attend the international council of churches of that denomination, which will open here today, arrived, among them Rev. Ralph Wardlaw Thompson, senior foreign secretary of the London Missionary society, and 20 other Englishmen. American and Canadian delegates also came.

Admiral Montejo Put on Trial.

MADRID, Sept. 20.—The trial of Admiral Montejo, formerly chief in command of Spain's naval forces in the Philippines, who surrendered to Admiral Dewey after the destruction of the Spanish fleet in the battle of Cavite began here. The prosecution demanded a sentence of imprisonment for life with dismissal from the service.

NOTES FROM GOTHAM

THE DEWEY PARADE AND THE YACHT RACE HOLD ATTENTION.

Tammany Has Troubles of Its Own—Hopeful Independents—John Y. McKane Passes Away—No Election for Mayor The Ramipo Company.

The last trial demonstrated the right of the Columbia to defend the cup. She defeated the old defender without much trouble and the yachtmen are confident that she can sail away from the Shamrock with equal ease. But the Shamrock is a very smart boat, and the race will not be a walkover for either. The coming of Sir Thomas Lipton, the owner of the Shamrock, has been an interesting event, and he has been most heartily welcomed by the professionals, as well as by the press of the city. He is represented to be a cheerful and clever gentleman, and just the kind which it will be an additional honor to defeat. Interest in the coming race increases every day even with the Dewey celebration so near at hand.

Former Governor Altgeld.

John Y. McKane

The differing elements of character were strangely blended in John Y. McKane, who passed away the other day at his home in that part of Greater New York, formerly known as Gravesend. McKane was born in Ireland and came to this country when very young. He learned the carpenters' trade and became a builder. He was a prominent member of a Methodist church, and for years was the superintendent of the Sunday school. He went into politics and in a short time became the absolute autocrat of Coney Island. Every interest in the town revolved around McKane, and no man ever had greater political power than he did. The town gave Cleveland a big majority when McKane was for Cleveland, and the reverse when McKane was for Harrison. Out of a population of 8,000 McKane's manipulations brought forth a poll of 6,000 and a corresponding majority for McKane's candidates.

It was the loss of the Gravesend vote, by the direction of McKane, that defeated Blaine for the Presidency. Feeling secure in his position and backing, McKane openly defied the law on many occasions, but it was not until the election of 1893 that a determined effort was made to defeat McKane. It was in that memorable contest that McKane declared "Injunctions don't go here." For this he was held for contempt and subsequently indicted on a number of charges. He was convicted and sent to prison for four years. After his release from prison McKane resumed his old business as master builder, and was very successful in getting contracts. He also wrote $250,000 in fire and life insurance policies in the last year, on which his commissions were $21,000. He will leave a fortune.

Labor Day Politics.

The appearance of former Governor John P. Altgeld in this city on Labor Day, and his address at the Cooper Union, does not indicate that there is to be the smoothest sailing for either party this year, or next. The former Governor appeared to have a large following among the thousands who made up the meeting if the enthusiasm aroused by his address can be taken as a guide. But his coming was not welcomed by the press of the city, and it is not too much to say that he was treated with scant courtesy by a very large portion of the city press, while some of the up-country papers have emphatically protested against his coming into the State at all in the name of Democracy.

Hopeful Independents.

The Independents who cling to the skirts of the Republican party, are in a different frame of mind from those who occupy a like position with the Democracy. The former ran a ticket for Mayor in 1897 and were defeated, but in doing this they also defeated the regular Republican candidate. There is always consolation for a politician when he can accomplish this much. These facts of history having now been recorded the next most natural thing is for the two opposing factions to come together. Conferences have been held, and there is said to be a probability of the Citizens' Union and the Republicans making the same nominations in many of the Assembly districts, so as to insure a Republican majority in the Assembly.

Tammany's Troubles.

The dominant party in this city will always have troubles of its own. That was demonstrated when Mayor Strong held the office for one brief term and then the opposition to Tammany so rampant and successful in 1895, became disrupted and torn to shreds two years later, giving Tammany another chance at the fat plums of office and contracts. Tammany has now had the undisputed control of the city government for two years, and it would indeed be a miracle if there was not vigorous opposition to it. But Tammany is a wonderful organization and it is conducted on lines which contemplate just such opposition as is now developing. In fact it is to guard against just such rebellions as we now hear of, that the district leader and the election district captains stay up night after night looking after the affairs of the party.

No Election for Mayor.

One of the great and influential newspapers is insisting that there shall be a special session of the Legislature and that the city government shall be legislated out of office, and the people given an opportunity to elect another Mayor this year. The Republican leaders talked of this for a time, but concluded that such action would only give added force to the contention that the city was governed from Albany too much, and that from a party standpoint it would be unwise.

Thieves Business Brisk.

Every one agrees that the business of the city was never better, and even the thieves must be regarded as enjoying their full share of prosperity. Since last January the robbery books of the police department show that this profession has taxed the people of the city, and the strangers who happened within its gates the very handsome sum of $3,500,000. Of this amount $500,000 has been recovered, and the balance appears as clear profit. But the books do not show it all. There is many a man from the country who is robbed in the Tenderloin district who never tells his troubles even to his wife, and, of course, the robbery book never records the amount. The remarkable prosperity which the thieves have enjoyed is very naturally attracting attention to the police department, and it is certainly in order for the chief to rise and explain.

Dewey Day.

Very naturally the question is being asked if it is safe for the ordinary unsofisticated individual to visit the Metropolis and attend the Dewey reception. Many who contemplate coming would be very glad to see an order issued such as Inspector Byrnes put into effect some years ago on a similar occasion, when he directed his officers to arrest all crooks who were known to be such, without warrants, but on general principles. Those who hesitated in the city, lost their liberty until the parade was over and then they were released. It was perhaps a serious infraction of the personal liberty which the constitution guarantees to every citizen of the State, but those arrested had their remedy by civil action. Probably if any had resorted to that remedy, they would have been confronted with a "past" that would have landed them in Sing Sing. At all events none of them ever brought actions against Byrnes, and honest people felt much easier for the enforcement of the order.

The Navy Group on Dewey Colonnade.

In Biesell's group, "The Navy," part of the Dewey Arch colonnade decoration, three figures are placed on a Dutch lugger. Liberty stands on the prow, holding a laurel wreath and sword in one hand and an olive branch in the other. At her back, against the square sail, are Roman standards, the dates on them—1776, 1812, 1861 and 1898—symbolizing the four principal wars of the republic. The old navy is represented by a figure with a cutlass, and the new navy by a gunner.

The Underground Road.

At last the city is to have an underground railroad, and it is expected that this will solve the long unsolved problem of rapid transit. Possibly it may for a time, but it will scarcely have been completed before the demand will be so great that some other means of transporting the people will have to be considered. The city officials who have so long opposed the construction of the road at the expense of the city, have changed front, and the corporation counsel has approved the form of contract that shall be made by the commissioners. The finance department finds that the city can borrow the money necessary to carry on this great work, and there now seems to be no reason why work should not be commenced very soon. The working men, it is alleged, have been a factor in bringing about this result. They were, and are still, organizing a political party which is likely to make some of the leaders of the old parties enjoy some sleepless nights. They are therefore to be put to work digging the big tunnel, and then they will have less time for the agitation of political subjects.

GAME AT CANTON.

Local Team Again Bows Head to Defeat.

SCORE A TIE IN ITS NINTH

Then Canton Develops a Batting Streak and Scores Six Runs—Massillon Unable to Make Them Up in Its Half

In the presence of nine hundred spectators, at least half of whom were from this city, the Canton baseball team inflicted another defeat upon Massillon. Fine playing on both sides was in order throughout the game, and, notwithstanding the hits and runs piled up, served to make it interesting. Canton won in the ninth inning, when, with the score standing 7 to 7, Smith was touched up for six runs. Stark led the batting for the game with a home run, two two base hits and two singles. For the former, made with two men on bases, his admirers presented him with $7 69, collected on the spot. Harry Smith's home run netted him $5.30, collected in the same manner. Ziegler, second baseman for the Springfield team, now spending a vacation at his old home in Canton, played shortstop for Massillon, and put up a good game in that position. Witt arose from a sick bed for the occasion, and covered second as usual. S Smith pitched his usual good game, but Canton's bunched hits in the latter part of the game were costly. Parks's success in umpiring last Sunday's game must have turned his head, for his decisions yesterday were far from satisfactory.

Massillon started to score in the first inning. With Ketler out, H. Smith drew a base on balls. Hallam muffed Witt's fly, giving the latter first and advancing Smith to second. Both scored on Stark's home run over the right field fence. Ziegler hit to left for two bases, and scored on Baumgartner's single. The latter scored on Nolan's hit to center.

In the third inning, Mahaffey singled to left, but was forced out at second by Locke. Cooper's sacrifice advanced the latter to second, and Gremminger's hit scored him. Gremminger scored on Delaney's single.

In the fifth, Mahaffey singled to right, but was again forced out at second by Locke. The latter took second on Smith's passed ball. Gove handled Cooper's two base hit in such quick style that Locke was unable to get further than third on it. Gremminger hit to left, scoring both.

Errors by Ketler and Witt, in the sixth placed Hallam and Mahaffey on bases. Locke's single to right scored the former, Nolan threw to Smith to put out Hallam and Locke advanced to second. Cooper drew a base on balls. Gremminger's hit scored Mahaffey and advanced Locke and Cooper a base each. The former scored on Delaney's single.

Delaney opened the ninth for Canton by watching four bad balls pass. Berry's single advanced him to second. Hobright tapped to S. Smith, who would have thrown Delaney out at third had not Ketler dropped the ball. Markel's two-bagger cleared the bases. Baumgartner made an error in handling Hallam's fly, and Markel scored. Mahaffey's hit scored Hallam. Locke singled, took second while Mahaffey was being thrown out at third, stole third, and scored on Cooper's two base-hit.

Ketler and S. Smith opened Massillon's ninth by flying out. H. Smith drew his third base on balls, took third on Witt's two base-hit, and both scored on Stark's single. They were the last men to cross the rubber.

GOT HIS DISCHARGE.

THINGS CAME JUST RIGHT FOR THE NAVAL MACHINIST.

An Incident of a Three Years' Cruise on the Vermont Which Goes to Show How Small, After All, This Great World of Ours Really Is.

Several years ago a quiet young chap shipped as a machinist in the navy aboard the receiving ship Vermont at the Brooklyn navy yard. He gave San Francisco as his place of nativity. He was assigned to a cruiser about to start for the China station by the Suez canal route. He was a crack mechanic and very soon showed the engineers that he knew how to earn his rate and wages. He never said much about himself. He wasn't anything of what is called a "man-o'-war chaw," and, although he had been up and down the world a good deal, he let others do the talking. He was perhaps the quietest man in the American navy at the time he served.

His ship got to the Asiatic station all right and cruised back and forth there between China and Japan for close on to three years. Then she was ordered back to the United States. She had a lot of "overtime" men aboard of her by that time, sailors whose time had expired, but who preferred to wait until they reached the United States before they took their discharges. When the ship was ordered back home, a lot of overtime men from other ships on the Asiatic station were sent to her to be brought back to this country.

This machinist—call him Beall—had just 21 days left of his three year enlistment when the ship left Yokohama for San Francisco via the Hawaiian Islands. All of the overtime men were talking about their trip around from San Francisco to New York by passenger steamer. They had all shipped at the Brooklyn navy yard, and the navy always sends men to the point whence it takes them when they enlist unless they "waive transportation" for the purpose of stopping off at an intermediary point.

It took the ship 14 days to "fetch up" Honolulu from Yokohama, and then Beall, the machinist, had five days yet to serve.

"Are you going to waive transportation and drop off at San Francisco, or are you going around to New York with us?" the men asked him when the ship pulled into Honolulu.

"Don't know yet," the machinist replied.

After coaling at Honolulu—which took four days, done leisurely—the skipper of the ship decided to take a bit of a run around the Hawaiian Islands before up anchoring for San Francisco. Beall's time expired on the morning that his ship was headed for Lahaina, on the island of Maui, a little sail of about 85 miles from Honolulu. The ship dropped her anchor within about 300 yards of the Lahaina beach along toward 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

The island of Maui is very beautiful to look upon—a veritable gem of the ocean, if such a one was ever fashioned by the hand of the creator. Beall, the machinist, was off watch and standing on the to'gallant fo'c'sle, smoking his pipe, when the ship cast her anchor off Lahaina. There was some longing in his quiet gray eyes. He knocked the ashes out of his pipe, stretched his arms and then walked down to the mainmast and told the officer of the deck that he wanted to see the commanding officer. The commanding officer came out of his cabin.

"What is it, my man?" he asked the machinist.

"My time is out, sir," said the machinist. "I guess I'll take my discharge here."

The commanding officer looked surprised.

"This is rather a queer notion," he said. "You shipped in New York, did you not? I should think you would want to get back to the United States after your three years on the China station. Or, at any rate, that you would prefer to wait until we get back to Honolulu, if you want to waive transportation and take your discharge down here among the islands. Why do you want your discharge today and here?"

The machinist smiled as he replied:

"Because this island here, Maui, is my home. At this moment my father and mother and seven brothers and sisters are on this island. They are at a place not very far from Lahaina, called Spreckelsville. The girl that I am going to marry is also there. I was born in Frisco, but my father came down to this island as engineer of a sugar plantation when I was 2 years old. None of them know that I am within just a few miles of home now. I want to give them a little surprise. I waive transportation, and I'll take my discharge now."

The commanding officer listened to the recital with interest.

"Of course we'll give you your discharge, son," he said, "although I'm sorry to lose you, and I had hoped you might ship over. Close mouthed men are wanted in the navy. You owe us some thanks, I think, for starting you off at New York, taking you around the world for three years and then fetching you up within an hour or so of your home on the very day your time is out. To all intents and purposes, we have been a yacht for you."

It was rather a remarkable happening for a fact. The machinist packed his things and went over the side, amid the pleasant salutations of the men, about two hours later, with his bag and hammock and a couple of thousand dollars in gold, his savings during the cruise. A couple of hours later he was with his people and his sweetheart in Spreckelsville. It is a small world.—Washington Star.

WOMEN PLAY HORSES

HOW THEY RISK THEIR MONEY AT THE RACES.

A Long and Anxious Line—Waiting for a Tip—Placing Money on a Sure Thing—Wants to Play One, Two, Three—They're Off.

At the centre of the long upper promenade of the grand stand at the Saratoga race track is an inconspicuous little room, tucked away from too curious eyes, bearing the non-committal information tacked over the doorway, "For the use of ladies only." This is the famous "Ladies' Book," the only one of its kind in America. Nowhere is betting on the races so freely indulged in by the gentler, and usually wiser, sex as at Saratoga, and nowhere is so little money wagered on a race. While at the big city tracks a few women will risk hundreds on their choice, here almost every woman in the stand yields to the temptation to "put a dollar on, just for fun, you know." To meet this demand, and avoid the heavy shaving of odds indulged in by the messenger boys, the "Ladies' Book" was organized at the track two years ago. The association declares that, as a matter of fact, the sums staked are so small that it does not pay financially, and is run merely as an accommodation.

In the Book Room.

Through the door of this little room, perched on the back of the stand like a huge bird cote, a constant stream of gorgeously plumaged feminine birds of paradise fly in and out. They are of all sorts and conditions of women. Soberly dressed, severely visaged mammas watch through their gold rimmed glasses the disappearance of their husbands ringward after imaginary cigars and slip quietly out of their seats to join the diamond studded trainers' wives, who boldly enter to play their husbands' "sure things." Here and there a huge negress elbows the trim, quiet maid from Fifth avenue

Within the room, behind a long counter, stands the bookmaker, Mr. J. P. Newman. There is practically nothing for him to do until the jockeys' names are posted. A few women play the biggest odds; a much larger number play a pretty name but nine women out of ten invest on the mounts of their favorite jockey.

Long and Anxious Line.

As soon as the riders are known the place fills up rapidly. Soon there is a long and anxious line behind a deliberate, gray haired lady, with the air of a New England "school marm." After carefully adjusting her glasses she looks over the slate with so exact a bargain counter air that one expects to hear her say: "Cut me off two yards of Maher's mount, please." The careful inspection finished, she asks, "How much do you pay on No. 7 here?"

"Just what it is marked, five to one, madam."

"Oh, is that all? I don't think I care for that. Now this No. 2, 'Dear Heart,' that's a pretty name. What kind of a horse is that?"

The odds layer assures her of his deep ignorance as to the virtues of the different steeds.

"Well, I should think you ought to know. Is Clawson riding anything? They say he is so very good"

Clawson's mount is pointed out.

"Oh, Miss Soak! I don't like that name. Couldn't you let me have six to one on that No. 7?"

By this time the comments of the infuriated women behind her have grown distinctly audible. She suddenly discovers that she is an object of hatred, becomes "rattled," lays down a five-dollar bill, takes a dollars' worth of No 11 by mistake and forgets to wait for her change. The girl behind her in the picture hat is a refreshing contrast, laying down the exact amount She explains:

"I want Gallihead 3 to 1 to win, and Sir Hubert, 6 to 1 a place," and walks off in the proud consciousness that she has exhibited the true professional air.

A Sure Thing.

A tall, regal looking girl clad in a deep violet gown that is a marvel of expensive simplicity, stands by the door anxiously looking out. Two women that have just entered see her and stop suddenly.

"There she is," whispers one to the other. "She's waiting for him to give her the tip They say she made $20 yesterday. Let's wait and see what she plays." A minute later a dapper, smooth shaven man enters hurriedly, says something to the violet clad girl and as hurriedly disappears. As she approached the counter the two women crowd close behind to hear what she says. To their intense chagrin she leans over and whispers it confidentially to the bookmaker.

"Can't you tell me what that girl in purple just played?" asks the first of the pair to reach the book. Mr. Newman, with a smile of bland, angelic innocence, assures her that he has totally forgotten.

"Oh, dear, I know she's found out the winner from that man. Let's see it must be that 100 to 1 shot. Give me $2 on him to win, please." And they depart, happy in the security that they have a good thing, and will plan how to spend the money five times over before the horses go to the post.

The next in line approaches with an air of grim determination and deep suspicion. Putting her hand down over her money on the counter, for fear it will be grabbed, she demands:

"Two dollars on the horse Spencer rides."

"All right," replies the "bookie." "Four dollars to two, Ben Hadad

"What's that, young man? Four dollars? You just gave that other lady six dollars to two."

"Odds have gone down; only two to one now."

"But you just gave that other lady three to one."

The bookmaker sighs despairingly, knowing what is before him, and starts in, but to all his demonstrations, arguments and explanations comes the unvarying reply:

Three to One.

"But you just gave that other lady three to one." With a final triumphant citing of the case of the "other lady" she sweeps up her two dollar bill and stalks off with a parting fling about "being robbed."

Now, for a time, things run smoothly. The majority of the customers have made up their minds beforehand and the business is conducted with that peculiar hushed voice and absence of demonstration that mark a well conducted gambling room.

There is no exhibition of excitement and a total absence of the trembling fingers so often seen in the ring below. Perhaps it is because the bets are so small; perhaps, after all, women have better control of themselves in public than men. Be the reason what it may, the ladies' book is the quietest place on the grand stand.

By and by trouble commences again. A woman lays down a dollar and two ten cent pieces.

"I want Buella to come in one, two, three," she says.

"What's the twenty cents for, madam?"

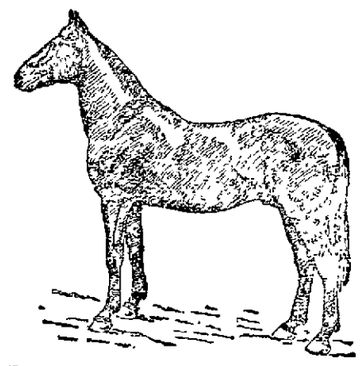
She manages to express with her eyebrows her deep contempt for his stupidity, and repeats, slowly and distinctly, as if instructing a little child:

"I tell you I want Buella to come one, two, three; that's forty cents for first, forty cents for second and forty cents for third. I couldn't give you thirty-three and a third cents, could I?"

It takes four precious minutes to explain that if she bets on the horse to come third she will win if it come first or second. When she at last retires instructed the bookmaker turns to the stunning woman next in order with a sigh of relief.

"I want three dollars on Dear Heart," she explains, and starts to go.

She is called back and reminded that she forgot to leave her money.



Winner of the Two-Year-Old Stakes.

The bugle call to the post sends the crowd scurrying out to look at the horses, while another crowd scurries in at the eleventh hour. Women are noted for betting at the last moment; perhaps it takes them all the time between races to make up their minds. So the room is well filled when the cry of "They're off!" sets the grand stand buzzing. There is a rush to the door, and amid the silence of the deserted room the bookmaker quietly but earnestly relieves himself of thirty minutes bottled up profanity.

Versatile Stomachs.

Transvaal Boers are said to eat almost anything in the flesh, fish or fowl line. This mixture is a delicacy: A big, square slice is cut off a loaf of bread of coarse unsifted meal, and it is covered with a thick layer of jam, preferably strawberry. A row of sardines is placed on top, and the oil from the sardine box is poured over the whole. A loud smacking of lips and other manifestations of thorough appreciation accompany the disposal of this bonne bouche. The Boer indulges in this luxury only when he means to enjoy a special treat, regardless of expense.

The Stepping Stones.

The famous stepping stones at Bolton Abbey, England, are picturesque, but like those of other rural and romantic streams, they have been the cause of endless inconveniences and not a few ugly mishaps. The Duke of Devonshire has recently erected a foot bridge over the river just below the stepping stones.

The law in Paris forbids the possession of more than one dog, and a Mme. de Pouy has been condemned to five days' imprisonment and a fine of $1 for having violated the commandment. The madame was very proud of four pretty pups, which she neglected or refused to drown, and hence her condemnation.

He Attends the "Dimicratic Sirkus and Animal Sho" at the State Convention In Ohio and Has Some Misgivings About Its "Attitood."

BURO UV INFERMASHUN,
WASHINGTON, D. C.

Tu the Editur:

I hev jest got bak frum another flyin trip tu the west, wich inclooded mi visit tu the Dimicratic sirkus and animal sho at Zanesville, Ohio, and wich out uv respeck tu former gatherin's wuz called a stait convenshun. We hev bin plannin fer the performance dooring the past fu weeks under the direcshun of Mr. John R. McLean. hoo wuz the ringmaster at our rehersals, and hoo iz tu kontinue in thet capasity dooring the stait campane. He lives in Washington most uv the time, and frum what I cood see and hear dooring mi trip tu Ohio, thare ain't likely tu be nothin in the result uv the campane tu cause him tu change hiz residence tu the stait whare he sumtimes stays over nite.

All our staitsmen hoo hev been korraled, occashunally, in these hedquarters hev bin uv the opinyun thet a grate Dimicratic victory iz needed in Ohio, this yeer, ez a send off fer 1900. We hev all felt thet it wuz necessary tu hev the president politikally repoodiated bi hiz own stait in order tu give uz the proper kind uv a foothold. It wood hev a most gratifyin inflooence on the Dimicratic fackshuns, hoo are fitein each uther, everywhare, and it wood also enkurrij the insurgents in the Fillipeens and in Massachoosetts. Thare hez bin no difference uv opinyun ez tu the necessity uv hevin a Dimicratic sweep in Ohio to sho the kountry thet such tyrants ez Mark Hanna, and such degenerit staitsmen ez McKinley kinnot forever rool with an iron hand. The only questshun hez bin ez tu hoo wuz best fixed tu du the job. At fust, none uv uz seriusly thot uv Mr. McLean ez the ringmaster uv the sirkus. At sum time or uther, dooring his career, he hez manijed tu be up aginst neerly all the leedin Dimicrats uv the stait, and hez blode hot and cold on their measures and their ambishuns. I found, dooring mi travels, thet tu menshun hiz name in the presence uv menny Dimicrats wuz like shakin a red rag in frunt uv an exsited bull. I found a noomerus number uv em at Zanesville, and it took all the keerful steerin we cood du tu prevent an outbroke in the convenshun. But it hed bin desided tu try the experiment uv runnin a millyunaire tu ketch the laberin vote, and so we hed tu squelch all opposishun.

The convenshun wuz about whut I hed expected after knoin whut hed bin dun previusly. We hed the job well sot up, considerin the size uv it and the material we hed tu work with. We got Mr. McLean nominated all rite in spite uv the powerful current uv opposishun wich wuz runnin agin him onderneath, and we hev put him ontu a platform wich wuz desined to ketch votes faster than fli paper will ketch flies. Ez a vote ketcher it iz rite in it if we only ketch em.

The resoloosbuns is hot stuff. We hev fired everybuudy overboard fer president, exseptin Mr. Bryan, and we hev endorst him at the rasho uv more than 16 tu 1 ez the only man in the kountry hoo kin leed the Dimicratic party tu victory—and then we nominated a man fer govenor hoo he woodn't hev on the ticket with him in 1896.

On war and imperialism we hit 'er up in grate stile, endorsin the soljers hoo fit intu the Revoloosbunary war, at Bunker Hill, but hoo wou't vote the Dimicratic ticket in Ohio this yeer, and straddlin 2 hosses he did in different direcshuns, on the Cuban and Fillipeen wars, and puttin in a good lick fer our Dimicratic ally in the Fillipeens, wich iz Mr. Aguinaldo. hoo at last akbounts wuz all rite and enthoosiastically opposin the administrashun uv Wilham McKinley.

We also resolooted strongly agin hitchin ontu enny entanglin alliances with furrin kingdums and empires—without waitin tu see wether tha wantid tu entangle themselves with the Dimicratic party uv Ohio.

We hit the Trusts and the politikal Bosses a staggerin blo, and showed how konsistent we wuz bi makin the most offensiv Dimicratic Boss in the whole stait our kandidate fer guvenor—and the one hoo iz in every Trust ez fer ez he kin git intu it.

We also deklared ourselves in favur uv the inishiativ and memorandum, but hed sum trubble in gittin it throo, on akhount uv the most uv the delegates not knowin whut it wuz. Tha thort it wuz sum nu kind uv mixed drinks. We put in a resoloosbun agin sweat shops, and hed one reported agin nite sweats, but it wuz rooled out on a pint uv order.

We got the platform throo the convenshun without much frickshun, but wen it cum tu nominatin a kandidate fer guvenor thare wuz sum plane speekin thet orter hev bin suppresst. It was real mean fer General Warner tu allood tu Mr. Kilburne ez "a man hoo lives in the stait," and fer uthers tu refer in a sarkastic wa tu Mr. McLean's big wad uv munny wich he will so grately need in Ohio before he kin be elected guvenor.

Ez a whole the program wich wuz mapped out wuz put throo with ez little hitch ez we cood expect wen we remember thet we hed tu crowd down the throats uv thousands uv good Dimicrats a man hoo wuz mortully hated bi em. But munny talks this yeer, and it hed tu be dun whutever the consequences. The resoloosbuns don't make much difference, fer an Ohio Dimicrat is expectid tu swaller whutever iz sot before him without asking enny questshuns; but wen I think uv the attitood we shall be placed in if our Fillipeen combinashun don't work I tremble fer the result. Givin ade an cumfert tu the kountry's enemies in time uv war hain't brot no distressin amount uv glory tu the Dimicratic party whenever tha hev tried it.

The Cruel Knife!

It is absolutely useless to expect a surgical operation to cure cancer, or any other blood disease. The cruelty of such treatment is illustrated in the alarming number of deaths which result from it. The disease is in the blood, and hence can not be cut out. Nine times out of ten the surgeon's knife only hastens death.

My son had a most malignant Cancer, for which the doctors said an operation was the only hope. The operation was a severe one, as it was necessary to cut down to the jawbone and scrape it Before a great while the Cancer returned, and began to grow rapidly. We gave him many remedies without relief, and finally, upon the advice of a friend, decided to try S S S (Swift's Specific), and with the second bottle he began to improve. After twenty bottles had been taken the Cancer disappeared entirely, and he was cured The cure was a permanent one, for he is now seventeen years old, and has never had a sign of the dreadful disease to return

That the sons of great men do not always turn out failures is proved by the fact that since the death of William H. Vanderbilt the stocks of the Vanderbilt roads have advanced in value nearly $175,000,000. The younger Vanderbilts have shown themselves as good financiers as those of an earlier generation.

The peerless leader of the incomparable Democracy, William Jennings Bryan, would repeal the Dingley tariff law as a first step toward the abolishment of trusts. Mr. Bryan's suggestion is not altogether illogical. With the adoption of the Wilson tariff monstrosity business of all kinds would be so effectively killed off that the trust problem would vanish into thin air.

The Rev. John I. Wilson's reappointment to the pastorate of the First M. E. church will be a matter for congratulation not confined to the members of the Methodist congregation. During his year's residence in Massillon Mr. Wilson has identified himself in many ways with the city's interests, has taken an able part in various public celebrations and has made hosts of friends both in his character as a pastor and as a citizen.

Mr. Bryan announces that the combined engines of the Democracy will assault the enemy of the masses during the coming campaign, that is, the gold standard. Such is the programme presented for the consideration of the American workingman. As a remedy for his real or imaginary ills, he is to be offered a depreciated and dishonest currency, the use of which will intensify every evil and bring back, in place of the present unexampled prosperity of the country, the conditions of depression and distress which flourished under the last Democratic administration.

The latest disatches from England indicate that gloomy expectations regarding the Transvaal dispute are again prevalent. It is now apparent that President Kruger's reply to the British note will settle nothing, while conceding enough to preclude Great Britain from forcing hostilities on what it refuses. The Transvaal's management of the crisis is now admitted to be managed with resolution and resource, and the republic may yet by successful counter proposals to Great Britain's dispatches, fill the time until the cooler sense of England sees how terribly inadequate her pretexts are for war.

The booming of the Democratic nominee for governor of Ohio for the second place on the Democratic ticket next year by the sub-committee of the national Democratic committee at Chicago will by no means interfere with McLean's attempt at a higher gratification of his ambition. If he wins in Ohio this fall he will try for the Presidential nomination: but if defeated, he will point to his vote, which will probably be larger than the normal Democratic vote, and contend that because he cut down the Republican vote in McKinley's state he is the most available man for candidate for Vice President. One way or another he will make something out of the power he has attained over the Democracy of the state.

The following hot shot is sent into the enemy's camp by E. K. Rife in his notes on political affairs:

"A rabbit's foot attached to the picture of McLean is to be the campaign badge of the Ohio Democracy this year. The rabbit comes from Australia, and they, like McLean, are foreigners. To the superstitious they represent good luck. The gambler, the green goods man, the fakir, the ignorant negro coonhunter of Georgia, the voodoo crone of Louisiana, all have them. In Australia, where the McLean charm comes from, the rabbits are considered a pest, and great bounties are offered for their annihilation. It is understood that John R. is offering a bounty for rabbit-foot recruits. He has chosen an appropriate emblem."

Archbishop Ireland, who has recently returned from a prolonged trip abroad, has drawn attention to the contrast between conditions in Europe and at home in a statement which is worthy of most careful attention. The archbishop says that the contrast between the masses in the United States and those in the old world is more remarkable than ever. The American poor, he says, are happier and a hundred per cent. more intelligent. Their surroundings are better and their chances are better. Where there is one case of misery here, there are hundreds abroad, and by abroad the archbishop means England as well as the continent. It is the sure employment and good wages of American workingmen which constitute their advantage over those of other countries. It is the protective tariff which prevents the foreign manufacturers who employ the pauper laborers of other countries from sending their products to the United States to enter into free and unrestricted competition with the products of the well paid labor of this country.

Questioned during a speech in Nebraska the other day, Bryan defended his war record as follows:

"I offered my services to a Republican President the day war was declared and they were never accepted. I then recruited a regiment of my own and for five months tried to get into service. I had nothing but peace. Then I resigned to come home and fight the Republicans and since then I have had nothing but war."

The doughty colonel did not explain, however, why he did not quietly enlist as hundreds of honest Americans were doing, instead of announcing his warlike determination in every newspaper in the country and then denouncing the President because he did not instantly make him an officer and send him, an inexperienced civilian, into the thick of the fray at the head of a regiment. Colonel Bryan "resigned to come home and fight the Republicans," just as his regiment was ordered to Cuba for garrison duty, and when his opportunities for spectacular posing as a war hero were practically at an end.

A writer in the New York Sun, a somewhat superficial observer of political conditions, calls attention to what he states is a fact in Ohio, that "out of every ten men of voting age, one draws a pension." It is pointed out that so large a number of pensioners desirous of remaining friendly to the party in power at Washington constitutes a strong support to the Republican state ticket in Ohio this year. The Sun ably refutes this statement as follows:

"It is true that in an adult male voting population of not very much more than a million, the number of soldier and sailor pensioners in the state of Ohio was, according to the last government report, 105,000, but it is by no means a fact that all army and navy pensioners are eligible voters. A majority of the pensioners are widows. Many are children, the female children of former veterans, and there are not probably more than 30,000 actual voting pensioners in the whole state of Ohio, if so many. Moreover, many of these secured their pensions under the two Democratic administrations begun in 1885 and 1893, and the title of a veteran to his pension is in nowise dependent upon the good will of the administration in power, as was shown in the election of 1888, when the majority of Ohio pensioners voted against the re-election of Cleveland, with Thurman the vice presidential candidate from that state."

Still More Counterfeiting.

The secret service has unearthed another band of counterfeiters and secured a large quantity of bogus bills, which are so cleverly executed that the average person would never suspect them of being spurious. Things of great value are always selected by counterfeiters for imitation, notably the celebrated Hostetter's Stomach Bitters which has many imitators but no equals for indigestion, dyspepsia, constipation, nervousness and general debility. The Bitters sets things right in the stomach, and when the stomach is in good order it makes good blood and plenty of it. In this manner the Bitters get at the seat of strength and vitality, and restore vigor to the weak and debilitated. Beware of counterfeits when buying.

HIS RACE IS RUN.

The Rev. Mr. Chapman Goes to His Reward.

FUNERAL SERVICE TONIGHT

The Body will be Taken to Nankin, Ashland County, Early Tuesday Morning for Interment—A Brief Sketch of a Long and Useful Life.

The Rev. John Casper Chapman, who had been ill since March 1, succumbed to Bright's disease and the other infirmities attendant upon old age at 8:25 o'clock Sunday morning. He was conscious to the last. Death occurred at the home of his daughter, Mrs. C. W. Moody, of 106 North East street, with whom he had made his home for seven years past. A brief funeral service will be conducted by the Rev. J. F. Clokey at the Moody residence this evening, and tomorrow the body will be taken to Nankin, Ashland county, the deceased's former home, where another service will be held, the Rev. Mr. Cummins, pastor of the Nankin Presbyterian church; and an old friend and associate of Mr. Chapman, officiating. Interment will be made at Nankin.

Mr. Chapman was born in Harrisburg, Pa., in 1818, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Chapman. In 1838, he married Elizabeth Parmer. They lived in Pittsburg for a few years, and then came to Ohio, settling in Ashland county, where Mr. Chapman assisted his father and grandfather in clearing their farms, between times working at his trade of shoemaker. Mr. Chapman's father and mother died at the old Ashland county homestead, which is located near Nankin. The little Ashland county village always had a great attraction for Mr. Chapman, and at three different periods of his life it was his place of residence.

Mr. Chapman was a man of great religious zeal. His parents were both Presbyterians, and he was raised a Presbyterian. When a young man, however, he resided in a community composed mainly of Methodists, and, desiring to be connected with some religious society, he united with the Methodist church. His piety and earnestness, together with his striking appearance and wonderful command of language, attracted the attention of the leading men of Methodism of those times, and while a very young man he was ordained an exhorter and sent into the western country to make converts. He was very successful in this work, acquiring a widespread fame as an evangelist and missionary.

Later in life he left Methodism, and, in 1874, was ordained a Presbyterian minister. Knowing his value as an evangelist, the church for years did not assign him to one particular charge, but sent him into districts in which were young or weak congregations to assist in their upbuilding. In 1885-6 he was located in Williams county, and this was his last charge. He retired from the ministry in the early part of 1887. A few years later he came to live in Massillon, and here he had resided ever since. Mr. Chapman was first connected with the Wooster presbytery, and afterwards with the Mahoning. Massillon is in the Mahoning district. A few days before his death, while in a reminiscent mood, he remarked that in his time he had preached in all but two churches in the Wooster district.

Mr. Chapman was the father of ten children, four of whom survive him. They are Mrs. S. C. Graham, of Youngstown; A. W. Chapman, of Hoboken, N. J; Mrs. M. S. Bradford, of Altoona, Wis., and Mrs. C. W. Moody, of Massillon. Mrs. Chapman died in Massillon last October.

NEWSPAPER AND CLUB.

One Should Belong to the People, and the Other Named After Jones.

It was the intention of Mayor Jones, of Toledo, to return home Saturday evening, leaving Massillon at 4:53 for Lorain. But he failed to observe the flight of time at East Greenville, where he delivered an address at a band carnival, and his train was gone when he returned to this city. Being then obliged to remain in the city until 9:40 Saturday night, at which time he could get a train that would make a Toledo connection at Mansfield, Mr. Jones decided to do a little speech-making while he waited. This fact was heralded to the masses from a gaily decorated carriage that made a round of the city. At 7:30 the mayor drove into the vacant space south of the opera house, and, after being introduced by Sherman Cochran, said that newspapers ought to belong to the people, and that the Massillon portion of these people ought to set about immediately to form a "Jones Non-Partisan Club." He also said as many other things as an hour and a-half would permit him.

VISITED HIS OLD HOME.

Arvine W. Fox Writes of a Trip Through Tuscarawas Township.

To the Editor of THE INDEPENDENT:

By the kindness of W. E. Russell, I was taken out a few days ago to Emmanuel Hornberger's, to take a last look at the place where I was born, a trip which called up many memories of events which took place in my boyhood days. I expected to see a part of the old block house in which I was born, but the ruthless hand of the destroyer had torn it down, and I only saw a few pieces of the timber which composed it. It was a peculiar structure, and ought to have been left standing as a relic of the early history of Stark county, when the skulking Indians were threatening to make raids upon the surrounding settlements. My father built the house, and made quite a number of port holes through which the inmates could defend themselves in case of an attack by the savages. My father built a good many houses that would be a curiosity for a modern carpenter to look at in these days of skeleton frames. He built a house for Ebenezer Shaw, on the farm now owned by Jacob Christman, who told me that when he took it to pieces there was not a stick of sawed timber in it. Another house my father built, which is still standing, I think, is the old Dean house, near the Myer's school house, which will be found, when taken down, to be of the same primitive construction.

When Mr. Russell and I left the main road and drove up to the gate, near the house, an old lady met us, but as she could not talk any English it was sometime before we could make her understand what we wanted. I got of the buggy and went to the gate and told her my name was Fox and what I wanted, and she gladly let me through and went with me to the house, leaving Mr. Russell in the buggy. When we got to the house I asked her if the old spring was still running at the bottom of the hill, just beyond the house. She laughed and pointed and I saw a man slowly coming up the hill with a bucket of water in his hand. When he got to the house we had a cordial shake of hands, as the old man knew me, having lived neighbor to him over a year, and although four years my senior, he seemed bright and cheerful, and I shall ever feel grateful to him for the cool drink of water he brought me out of the spring—cold as ice and soft as rain water. We then bid them good-bye and drove across to Mrs. Wm. Moffitt's, where we found them all glad to see us. We met there my old and life-long friend, William Slusser, and his neice, with whom I was not personally acquainted, though the name, Danner, is associated with my earliest recollections. Our time was limited and we had to bid them all a hasty good-bye, promising to come and see them before long if possible, and then we drove around by the way of Brookfield, where I pointed out some old land marks to Mr. Russell, who has made it possible for me to write this brief, but imperfect sketch,

COXEY IN PITTSBURG.

Says His Steel Plant at Pauls will be Completed by January 1.

"General" Jacob S. Coxey, of Massillon, O, is at the Hotel Victoria. He has been engaged recently in the removal of the plant of the Spang Steel and Iron Company, of Etna, and has just concluded its shipment to Massillon. The machinery is to be used by "General" Coxey in a steel foundry, which he is about to establish on his farm. He said last night that the building of his new plant is being delayed by reason of his inability to get an order filled in Pittsburg for structural steel. He expects, however, to have his foundry in working order by next January. "General" Coxey says he is taking no hand in Ohio politics, and that he is so closely devoted to his business that he scarcely knows the names of the candidates on the state tickets.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

A WORK OF ART.

A Magnificent Statue Blessed Sunday.

IN ST. MARY'S CHURCH.

Lifelike Representation of Christ, Modeled in Stone Composition, Direct From Paris, Presented to the Congregation by Young Ladies.

The magnificient statue of Christ, presented to St. Mary's Catholic church by the Young Ladies' Sodality, was blessed Sunday evening, the Rev. Victor Arnould, rector of St. Peter's church, of Canton, acting as celebrant, with the Rev. J. F. Kuebler, of St. Joseph's church, and the Rev. H. Boeskin, of West Brookfield, as assistants. The Rev. H. V. Kaempker, rector of St. Mary's church, and the Rev. A. Magenhann, formerly of Mansfield, who is now the guest of the Rev. Mr. Kaempker, occupied seats in the sanctuary. The Rev. Mr. Kuebler preached a brief sermon.

The statue, which is of a stone composition, is five feet and four inches in height. It stands in a niche just within the railing of the sanctuary, to the right of the altar. The decorations of cream and gold are exquisite. The eyes are a striking feature of the statue, being so perfect in their coloring and so lustrous as to give the cold stone an appearance wonderfully life-like. The statue is to represent the infinite love of the Lord for all mankind. The hand, on which the wound inflicted by the crucifixion is plainly marked, is raised as if in giving a blessing. The inscription is in Latin, "Ocor Amoris Victima," meaning "Oh Heart! Victim of Love." The statue came direct from Paris. It is the finest work of the kind in this part of the state. The Rev. Mr. Kaempker said today that any persons desiring to view the statue could do so at any time. The church was crowded all day Sunday.

John B. Verment, of this city, is now at work on a baptismal font for the church, which will be another handsome ornament. The stone for the font arrived last week.

THE NEWS OF STRASBURG.

Joseph Gepfert and Wife Celebrate Their Golden Wedding.

STRASBURG, Sept. 19.—With Klondike and Florida forming the northern and southern boundaries of this town, the frozen regions of the north and the deep waters of the seas on the south will prevent any further extension in either of those directions, but with New York available for absorption on the east and Chicago on the west, there is still a chance for this town to spread.

Jacob Seikel's celebrated game rooster met with a serious misfortune lately. While engaged in mortal combat with a dunghill bird that was getting the better of him, he aimed to get in a "solar plexus" blow and spurred so hard as to break one of his legs, which placed him hors de combat. With the skillful assistance of Surgeon Kugler the fractured limb was repaired, and Jake entertains high hopes that his plucky rooster's career is not ended.

Joseph Bash, the polite and amiable landlord of the Hotel Bouquet, has announced himself as a candidate for the office of census enumerator of this township. He no doubt has the ability to record the names correctly and count the number of our inhabitants accurately

Since the disappearance from our village of the nuisance known as the slot machine, some of our young men are wearing better clothes.

Frank Kuhn, of Cleveland, was here last Friday, after an absence of fifteen years, visiting old friends and acquaintances and renewing the fond recollections of the time when he was an honored citizen of Strasburg. He was much astonished at the change that has taken place, especially so far as business matters and material improvement of the town are concerned.

Jacob Gepfert and wife, a well known and well to do couple living near here, celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding last Friday. Surrounded by their children and grandchildren, together with a large number of friends and neighbors, the day was pleasantly spent in social conversation, diversions and feasting. It was a joyous occasion to the aged and happy couple. The religious feature of the celebration was in charge of the Revs. Bodmer and Heck, of Strasburg, who solemnized the occasion with services usual and pertinent to a proper observance of golden weddings. Each of the celebrants were presented with a pair of fine gold spectacles and many other valuable presents. Mr. Gepfert was also made the recipient of a very highly polished cane, made of Texas cow horns, and valued at fifty dollars. To all the participants this celebration was a very pleasant and happy affair, and all join in wishing the aged couple yet many years of contented, prosperous and happy life.

We note, with pleasure, that the general prosperity of the country has tended greatly to soften, and in some instances, altogether change the former seeming unyielding political views and feelings of many of our voters.

A BAD MINE ACCIDENT.

CRYSTAL SPRING, Sept. 19.—C. Klein, of this place, has been notified of an accident which befell his brother, Nick Klein, and two sons, who were employed in a coal mine near Wadsworth. Their day's work was done and they were ready to shoot coal for the next day. A miner in a room close by fired his shot ahead of them which filled Mr Klein's place full of smoke, through which he was compelled to go and light his shot. His oldest son accompanied him to show light. After the fuse was ignited they became bewildered in the dense smoke, and before they could get out the shot exploded and all three were hit by flying coal. Mr. Klein's left side was badly mashed and part of the flesh burned to a crisp. He also sustained internal injuries and his condition is very serious. The oldest son had his elbow bruised and several bones were dislocated, which may cause him to have a stiff arm. The other son, who was not so close, was struck on the head by a fragment of coal, which rendered him unconscious. Otherwise he escaped unhurt.

YOUTHFUL BURGLARS.

Police Succeed in Solving Two Deep Mysteries.

A number of people have been under suspicion since the Graham and Hermann groceries were burlarized. Among them were Frank and Charles Molar, colored boys employed at the Hotel Sailer. They were arretesd at 1 o'clock Monday morning by Policeman Brownsberger. Some of the property taken from the Graham place was found in their possession. When arraigned this afternoon, each made a full confession. They said that the Graham job was done at night and the Hermann burglary at 9 o'clock on a Sunday morning. The mayor bound them over to court in the sum of $200 each, which they were unable to give. They will be taken to the Canton jail to await trial. The older of the boys is but 16. They arrived in Massillon three months ago with a big flag and other things in their possession. They were arrested at that time, but were discharged, there being no evidence that they had stolen the property.

M. E. CONFERENCE.

Appointments for the Ensuing Year.

DELEGATES TO CHICAGO.

The Statistical Secretary's Report Shows the Various Funds to be in Fine Condition—The Scio and Mt. Union College Question Not Discussed.

At the Monday morning session of the M. E. conference, at Alliance, the invitations of the various cities for the next meeting of the conference were considered, that from Youngstown being accepted.

The report of the committee on education was read and accepted. The only reference to the question of consolidating Mt. Union and Scio colleges was as follows: "In the matter of the memorial relating to the reorganization of the board of trustees of Scio college, your committee report that, as the necessary legal steps have not been properly taken, they are unable to concur therein."

Dr. J. R. Mills was granted a supernumerary relation.

The Monday evening session was devoted entirely to routine business.

At the Tuesday morning session the Rev. J. J. Wallace, statistical secretary, presented a report of church collections, membership, etc., showing a most gratifying increase in each of the various branches and in all things bearing upon the prosperity of the church. The increase over last year in the amount contributed for missions was more than $3,000. The total of the benevolent collections was $50,041, being an increase of $5,800 over last year.

At 9:10 Bishop Mallalieu read the appointments for the ensuing year, after which the conference adjourned.

Following are the appointments for presiding elders for the different districts:

Akron—J. N. Robins, Warren.

Barnesville—J. M. Slutz, Barnesville.

Cleveland—John F. Fisher, Cleveland.

Steubenville—H. S. Jackson, Steubenville.

Uhrichsville—Geo. F. Oliver, New Philadelphia.

Youngstown—A. N. Craft, Youngstown.

The following is the complete list of appointments for Canton district:

George B. Smith, presiding elder, Alliance, O.

T. W. Lane, First church, Alliance; G. L. Davis, Union avenue, Alliance: C. C. Chain, Berlin Center; C. W. Harshman, Deuber avenue, Canton; C. E. Manchester, First church, Canton; T. C. Stahl, Lawrence avenue, Canton; C. N. Church, Simpson, Canton; A. W. Gruber, Carrollton; J. W. Satterthwaite, Columbiana; T. W. Anderson, Damascus; J. B. Manley, Dell Roy; T. H. J. L. Shunk, professor of Mt. Union college, member of Union avenue, Alliance, quarterly conference.

W. H. Pearson, chaplain U. S. army, member Union avenue, Alliance, quarterly conference.

The complete list of ministerial delegates and alternates to the general conference at Chicago is as follows: L. H. Stewart, Cleveland; H. S. Jackson, presiding elder Steubenville district: George B. Smith, presiding elder Canton district; O. W. Holmes, Bellaire, and T. W. Lane, Alliance. Alternates, John F. Fisher, Cleveland, and J. W. Robins, presiding elder Cambridge district. Lay delegates, Frank A. Arter, Cleveland, and Senator S. J. Williams, Alliance.

The Alliance Review says: It was expected that conference would grapple with the question of the removal of Scio college, which has been the theme of much discussion during the past few months, since the social, financial and educational disturbance caused by the "oil boom." It was known that the proposition to discontinue the institution at Scio and merge it into Mt. Union college would be vigorously resisted, and no doubt the spirited debate that was expected would have occurred had a report favoring a removal or discontinuance been made. The committee on education, however, after carefully considering the subject, decided not to recommend or suggest a change and simply commended Scio college to the fostering care and support of the conference.

ORGANIZATION COMPLETED.

Massillon Iron and Steel Company's Directors and Officers.

The Massillon Iron and Steel Company, whose plant is to be located just east of the city, has completed its organization by the election of the following directors: C. M. Russell, C. L. McLain, J. W. McClymonds, C. O. Heggem, H. A. Croxton and S. W. Croxton, of Cleveland. The directors have elected C. M. Russell, president and treasurer; C. L. McLain, vice president, and H. A. Croxton, secretary and general manager. The company has let the contract for the erection of its main building, which is to be 250x100 feet, to the Massillon Bridge Company, and work will be begun just as soon as the Sippo street extension and other matters have been settled. The council now has the extension under consideration, and it is not unlikely that at the next meeting it will be decided to proceed with the work at once. The office of the company will be temporarily located at the headquarters of the Massillon Light, Heat & Power Company.

THE WIRE BROKE.

And Two Valuable Horses were Killed.

MEN BADLY FRIGHTENED.

The Wire Which Gave the Animals Their Death Hung But a Few Inches from Driver Schneider's Head, and He was Afraid to Move.

The trolley wire of the C. & M. electric line suddenly broke at 8:30 o'clock Tuesday evening, at a point between the Floom and Dannemiller farms, just this side of Reedurban, and two horses were killed and two men had a narrow escape. The horses were the property of John Fiegenschuh, local agent for the Herancourt Brewing Company. The men were Joseph G. Schneider, of 137 Canal street, driver for the company, and Joseph Arnold. They had taken a load of beer to Canton and were returning to Massillon.

"A car was coming from Massillon," said Mr. Schneider today, "just as we reached the hollow between the two farms. When the car got opposite to us, it suddenly became dark. I looked over to see what was the matter, and just then the horses gave a lurch and began to make an awful noise. One of them fell dead as I turned my head. The other struggled for a few minutes and then it died. I sat right where I was and called to my companion to do the same, for I was afraid that we might get against the wire. It was awfully dark, and I didn't have any idea where the wire was for a minute. Then I discovered it dangling about six inches from my head. The sight of it made me stiff with fright. Recovering, however, I slipped out of the back end of the wagon. Arnold jumped out. If I had been sitting up straight, the wire would have certainly caught me, but I was lying back against a big box when the thing occurred. The wire must have struck one horse first, and its struggles threw it on the other."

Mr. Fiegenschuh stated today that the horses killed were one of the best teams for his business obtainable. He says he cannot estimate his loss in dollars. The harness was badly torn and burned. The car which came up as the accident occurred was in the charge of Conductor Piero. The break was not caused by the trolley. The railway men think there must have been a defect in the wire. The damage was quickly repaired. Mr. Schneider came to Massillon on the first car that could pass, and notified Mr. Fiegenschuh of the affair. Other horses were procured to bring the wagon to town, and the dead animals were buried near the place where they fell. This accident occurred but a short distance from where horses belonging to Mr. Brenner were recently killed in the same manner.

Deafness Cannot be Cured
by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever: nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that can not be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

ONLY TWO BLOWS.

One of Them Gave the "Indian" His Quietus.

SIMMS TOO HARD AND FAST

The Contest was not Two Minutes Old When the Akron Man Sent Out His Right for a Victory Over the Canton Boxer—600 People Present.

Boxer Arthur Simms, of Akron, fighting in Bucher's opera house, Tuesday evening, under the colors of the West Massillon Athletic Club, landed a terrific right-hand swing on "Indian" Fotch's left jaw and won his battle before it was a minute and a half old. Only two blows were struck. Simms delivered both. The men entered the ring at 11:45 o'clock, and spent a trifle more than a minute in walking around each other and sparring for an opening. Then Simms's left mit shot out and lightly tapped Fotch's face. Thereupon Fotch changed his guard slightly, affording the opening which Simms took advantage of when he threw out his right for a knock-out. Fotch says that the blow that put him out struck him on the temple, but Simms states that it was a jaw swing, and so it appeared to all those who were near enough to see. Fotch attempted to rise when he heard the referee begin to count, and then sunk back upon the floor unconscious. He rallied in a minute or two, though he was still groggy when his seconds assisted him out of the ring.

The contest took place in a twenty-foot ring, and all points were governed by Marquis of Queensbury rules. Jack Cully, Charles Layton and Michael Gallagher, of the Akron South Hill Athletic Club, were in Simms's corner. Fotch's seconds were Billy Moore, the heavyweight fighter, and Eddie Foreman, the light weight. John Moylan, of this city, refereed the contest. He was chosen after a wrangle of twenty minutes. Neither side would accept a man endorsed by the other. A dozen persons, all well known in sporting circles, were suggested, only to be turned down. It finally became necessary to cast lots, the successful side to have the right to name the referee. Moylan had been suggested by Fotch's friends. He was a stranger to both Fotch and Simms. Charles Davis, of this city, and Elmer Manton, of Akron, were the timekeepers. Joseph Ehret, president of the West Massillon Athletic Club, under whose auspices the entertainment was given, acted as master of ceremonies.

Stocky, sinewy and twenty pounds heavier than his opponent, Fotch was in striking contrast to the slender Simms, who, at the beginning of the bout, looked pale and scared. But his friends say that he is naturally pale, and that the anxious expression is habitual. Fotch was actually a terrifying sight. His dark features screwed into an almost demoniacal expression, his teeth set and his eyes flashing fire, it was no wonder that Simms decided to put him out before he warmed to the fray. Simms told his seconds that if he was to win, it would have to be early in the game. Simms, who is five feet and nine inches in height, weighed exactly 123 pounds. Fotch, five feet and six and three-fourth inches, weighed 143. Fotch has a wonderful muscular development. He looks like a Sandow. Simms's biceps were hardly perceptible. His shoulders have good width, though his chest measurement is none too large. His legs, so people in the audience called out, were like pipe-stems. Simms claims to be but twenty years old. He works in a pottery, and in his spare moments gives boxing lessons at the rooms of the South Hill Athletic Club. Victory brought Simms $50. Fotch received $25.

The paid admissions numbered exactly 504. Both the gallery and the lower floor were well filled. The prices of admission were 50 cents and $1. The Akron people, 311 in number, arrived somewhat later than was expected, their special train not reaching here until 8:45 o'clock. They came down from Clinton over the M. & C. branch of the Pennsylvania, and returned at 1 o'clock. About 75 Cantonians attended the exhibition. They went home on the 2:18 train on the Pennsylvania. Massillon was not particularly interested in the affair, neither principal being from this city, though one of them fought under Massillon colors. Simms was introduced as being from Massillon. Fotch, who is a Canton man, lived in Massillon for several years at one time.

GEOGHAN-LYONS.

John Geoghan, of this city, and William Lyons, of Canton, put up the first preliminary. They were to go six rounds, but in the third Lyons fouled Geoghan and the contest was awarded to the latter. Lyons had forced Geoghan to the ropes, where the latter slipped to his knees, and Lyons struck him three times while in this position. The boys went in to mix it up, and they had each other bleeding freely. Geoghan was seconded by R. Featheringham, W. Vogt and E. O'Doneal. Billy Moore was in charge of Lyons.

FOREMAN-PALMER.

Eddie Foreman, of Canton, and Jack Palmer, of Akron, sparred a ten-round draw. Palmer forced the fighting throughout, landing two blows to his opponent's one, but they seemed to lack power, for Foreman was still in fair condition at the end of the bout, though Palmer would probably have put him out if the contest had continued much longer, he being much the fresher of the two. Palmer did most of his hitting with his left hand. He landed thirty blows on Foreman's face. The gloves were large and soft, and probably this had something to do with his failure to do much damage. Foreman landed the first blow and the last. He did not appear to be a hard hitter. Some of his work was really scientific, but he was not handy with his guards. Foreman was three inches taller than Palmer and had the advantage in every way. Palmer had something of Fotch's appearance in the ring. Behind Foreman were Moore and T. Conley, of Canton. Layton, Gallagher and Cully seconded Palmer. Layton is Simms's manager. The decision of "Kid" Lloyd, of Cleveland, who refersed the match, did not meet with the approval of the Simms people. They protested at the time and later would not accept Lloyd for referee of the big event of the evening.

INCIDENTS OF THE EVENING.

The crowd was the most orderly that has ever attended a boxing carnival in Massillon. Policemen Ertle, Wittmann and Wissmar were in the house, and before the Simms Fotch event was called, Officer Ertle spoke a few words from the stage, cautioning those present not to whistle or yell, but to applaud with the hands only. Mr. Ehret stated in the beginning that those who came to see a prize fight would be disappointed: the contest, he said, would be a scientific exhibition of the manly art.

Fotch is an acrobat and all-round athlete, and has been fighting two years. He got his first experience in Detroit. Within the past year he has had many fights, winning the two fought at Mansfield and Galion. He is also something of a bicycle rider, and it is his ambition to become a professional racer. Simms has been a boxer ever since he was old enough to lift the gloves.

"It was a chance blow that put me out," said Fotch, when he became himself again, Tuesday night. "He couldn't do it again in a hundred years. I challenge him to another fight." But Simms told him he could not talk about it just then.

"I knew I had to do it early in the game, if at all," remarked Simms last night. "I got my opening, and I let him have it."

ELLERY-METZ.

Two Well Known Young People Married Tuesday Afternoon.

William Ellery, formerly of Massillon, and Miss Mary Metz were married in the presence of about forty friends and relatives at the Metz residence, in North East street, at 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, the Rev. F. H Simpson performing the ceremony. The house was beautifully decorated with chrysanthemums, the marriage taking place under a bower of ferns. The couple entered to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by Miss Vesta Shoemaker. The bride was dressed in white and carried pink roses. Supper was served immediately after the ceremony, and at 8:25 Mr. and Mrs. Ellery left, amid showers of rice from friends gathered at the station, for Niagara Falls and the East, where they will spend a week. They will reside in Lancaster, where Mr. Ellery has important business interests.

HAMILTON-KACKLEY.

Marshall Hamilton, of North Carolina, and Miss Greta Kackley, of Guernsey county, O., were married on Tuesday evening at the First M. E. parsonage by the Rev. John I. Wilson. Miss Kackley has been visiting at the home of her sister, Mrs. Frank A. Burlingame, for some time.

MONBAREN-FEATHERINGILL.

Leo C. Monbaren, of Canal Fulton, and Miss Nora Featheringill, of West Brookfield, were quietly married by the Rev. A. G. Berky, at the latter's residence, in South Henry street, Tuesday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Monbaren will reside near Wooster.

MOORE-HEFFNER.

George Moore and Miss Josephine Heffner were married in St. Joseph's church at 9 o'clock this morning, the Rev. J. F. Kuebler officiating. The bride was attended by Miss Kate Frantz. Edward Geoghan was the groom's best man. Mr. and Mrs. Moore will reside in Jarvis avenue.

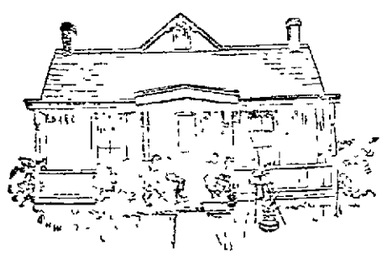
FOR LITTLE FOLKS.

A FINE PLAYHOUSE.

It Is Just Like a Regular Dwelling, Only It Isn't Large.

If there is anything commendable in parents, it is the care and love they have for their children and the desire to make home pleasant and their youthful days happy. This can be truly said of Mr. Albert Bach and his devoted wife of Madison, Ind. We present a picture of a playhouse built and furnished by Mr. and Mrs. Bach for their children. You see on the veranda, three pretty little children—Laura, Freda and Carl—the proud possessors of this palace playhouse and all contained therein. It is in the rear of Mr. Bach's residence, next to the national bank, and is, perhaps, the largest and prettiest playhouse in the state of Indiana.



"ON THE PORCH AT HOME."

The playhouse is in reality a small cottage of four rooms and a hall. Down stairs there are three rooms and a hall, each room, parlor, sitting and dining room and kitchen, being nine feet square inside, with a seven foot ceiling. The hall is 2½ feet wide, from which ascends a handsome pair of stairs to the bedroom above, which is also nine feet in the clear each way, with a six foot ceiling. The entire building is handsomely furnished inside, the walls papered and the woodwork stained in a natural wood color. Each room is lit with an incandescent lamp hung from the center of the ceiling, and there is an electric bell at the front door. In the dining room are seen shelves full of handsome chinaware and table sets, and the kitchen is supplied with all the utensils a cook could desire. Among these are a range, washing machine, ice cream freezer and a conveniently located sink.

Among the articles of furniture in the cottage are a piano, writing desk, sofa, center table, sewing machine, wardrobe and a brass bedstead, with other smaller bedsteads containing 16 curly haired dolls. The house is complete in every respect. When asked what was the particular object in building so fine a playhouse and one so large, Mr. Bach replied, "To teach our children how to keep house when they have one of their own and to make home the pleasantest place, keeping them off the street."—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

A Boy's Grit.

The grit and heroism of two young Americans were displayed recently in an accident which occurred in a lumber yard in New York.

A crowd of small boys were playing about the towering piles of boards that face the water front. A dozen of them were jumping from pile to pile, 50 feet or more above the level of the ground.

They struck one pile which tottered under their combined weight and fell forward into the river. All of them jumped for safety excepting 9-year-old Charles Johnson.

He went over with the lumber into the water, striking in a tangle of boards about 30 feet from the shore. Both of his legs were broken in two places, but in spite of the awful pain he was suffering he managed to extricate himself from the tangle and cling to one of the boards.

Rudolph Kramer, a young man employed on the pier, saw the lad's plight and jumped into the river to the rescue. The tide was running strong, but he fought his way through the debris and finally reached the little hero.

"Be easy with me," the little fellow said. "You'll have to swim me in. I can't move my legs."

Young Kramer with great difficulty towed the lad to the pier on a big board, where both were pulled out. The lad did not give in till he was on dry land and then fainted.

A Bedtime Song.

Say, to and fro the twilight gray.
The [illegible] drowsy town,
It [illegible] at the end of day,
Just as the darkness is closing down.

Rest, little head on mother's shoulder, so;
A sleepy kiss is the only fare,
Drifting away on the world we go,
Baby and I in the rocking chair.

See where the fire-fly sparks glow and spark,
Glimmering lights of the [illegible] lane,
The [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]—hark!
Are [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] its sound?

There where the [illegible] is standing dim
A [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] still,
Blossoms are [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]—
Those over there [illegible] will now sill.

Rock slow, more slow, in the dusky light,
Sleep [illegible] the [illegible] down,
Dear little [illegible] [illegible] [illegible],"
We've [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] town.
—W. Douglas Chapool.

A Mother Seal's Long Swim.

A story of the capture of a young seal recently near Anacapa island, California, is told by Ernest Whitehead.

The seal was taken on board his ship. As the vessel started, the mother seal was noticed swimming about howling piteously. The little captive barked responsively. After reaching the wharf at Santa Barbara the captive was tied up in a jute sack and left loose on the deck. Soon after coming to anchor the seal responded to its mother's calls by casting itself overboard, all tied up as it was in the sack. The mother seized the sack and with her sharp teeth tore it open. She had followed the sloop 80 miles.

A GLEAM OF PLEASURE.

Along the noisy city ways,
And in this rattling city car,
On this the dreariest of days,
Perplexed with business fret and jar,

When suddenly a young, sweet face
Looked on my petulance and pain
And lent it something of its grace
And charmed it into peace again.

The day was just as bleak without,
My neighbors just as cold within,
And truth was just as full of doubt,
The world was just as full of sin.

But in the light of that young smile
The world grew pure, the heart grew warm,
And sunshine gleamed a little while
Across the darkness of the storm.

I did not care to seek her name.
I only said: "God bless thy life.
Thy sweet, young grace be still the same,
Or happy maid or happy wife."
—Phillips Brooks.

MUSIC IN EVERYTHING.

Pretty Surprises Met With In a Geneva Music Box Factory.

The chief industry of Geneva is the manufacture of musical boxes. Thousands of men, women and children are employed in the factories, one of which was visited by a traveler who gives some interesting particulars about his visit.

An attendant invited him to take a seat. He did so, and strains of delightful music came from the chair. He hung his hat on a rack and put his stick in the stand. Music came from both rack and stand. He wrote his name in the visitors' register, and on dipping his pen into the ink music burst forth from the inkstand.

The manager of the factory explained the process of making musical boxes, a business which requires patience and nicety.

The different parts are made by men who are experts in those parts and who do nothing else year in and year out.

The music is marked on the cylinder by a man who has served several years of apprenticeship. Another man inserts in the marked places pegs which have been filed to a uniform length. The comb, or set of teeth, which strikes the pegs and makes the sound is arranged by a man who does nothing else. The cylinder is then revolved to see that every peg produces a proper tone.

The most delicate work of all is the revising of each peg. It is done by a workman who has a good ear for music. He sees that every peg is in its proper place and is bent at the correct angle.

When the instrument is in its case, an expert examines it to see that the time is perfect.—St. Louis Republic.

How He Wanted to Pay.

Some years ago an affray among miners in the west resulted in murder, and Senator Thurston, believing the accused to have been innocent in intention, took up his case and greatly mitigated the lad's punishment. Six months afterward a man, armed to the teeth, appeared in Thurston's office.

"Be you Squire Thurston?"

"Yes."

"Be you the man that defended Jack Bailey at court?"

The senator, thinking his last hour was come, again answered, "Yes."

"Well, I'm Jack Bailey's pardner, and I've come to pay you. I haven't got any money, but I'm a man of honor. Anybody in town you don't like?"

As the senator smilingly disclaimed any thirst for booty or blood, the caller insisted incredulously: "Put on your hat, squire, and just walk down the street. See anybody you don't like, throw up your thumb and I'll pop him."—Youth's Companion.

Chinese Bound Feet.

The Chinese saying is, "For each pair of bound feet there has been a whole kang, or big bath, full of tears," and they say that one girl out of ten dies of foot binding or of its after effects. When I quoted this to the Italian mother superior at Hankow, who has for years been head of the great girl school and foundling establishment there, she said, with tears in her eyes:

"Oh, no, no! That may be true of the coast towns." I thought she was going to say it would be a gross exaggeration in central China, but to my horror she went on, "But more here—more—more."—"Intimate China," by Mrs. A. Little.

Bookkeeping Comes High.

"It makes me tired," said the young man—"these advertisements guaranteeing to teach a person bookkeeping for $10."

"But can't it be done?" was asked.

"Not on your life! Why, I spent six months and over $100 to learn the art, and what do you suppose happened at the close of the first year?"

"Got your figures mixed?"

"Well, I should smile! There was a discrepancy of $700 between the cash-book and my ledger, and my father had to make it good, while I hunted for another job!"—Brooklyn Citizen.

A Financial Shock.

A man went to a local bank with a check which there was no cash on deposit to meet. When the paying teller declined to respond, the applicant loudly demanded to see the cashier.

"We have no 'cash here' for you," quietly responded the teller.

The man with the check saw the point. He moved in circles till he found his way out, tobogganed down the front steps and was led a block by a policeman before sufficiently recovered to make explanation.—Detroit Free Press.

FARM NOTES.

Matters of Real Interest to the Reading Farmer.

A Merino ram crossed on a flock of common sheep will double the yield of wool through the first cross alone, thus paying for himself the first season.

To keep fowls in a yard in summer on an exclusive diet of grain is inexcusable cruelty. A partial diet of grass and vegetables is vastly better and cheaper.

The Vermont Experiment Station tried mixing molasses with the Bordeaux Mixture on potatoes. It caused the mixture to stick to the vines, but the practise is condemned because the molasses attracts bees to the poisonous mixture.

Prof. Cooke tells us that ordinary skim-milk is worth eleven cents per 100 pounds just to pour on the ground as a fertilizer. In other words, a can of skim-milk contains all the fertility there is in five pounds of the highest grade fertilizer!

Experience has shown that clover is the best fertilizing plant that can be used. This is due to the power of that plant to assimilate free nitrogen, and to store it up in its own substance in what are called protein forms.

Where limbs are cut from trees, the best way to prevent rotting is to cover the holes closely with tin or sheet-iron, to exclude moisture, and keep this painted. A strip of felting or old rubber may be placed under the edges and all nailed down snugly.

The profit of modern farming depends upon a correct understanding how and when to market. The farmer who does not understand the demands of the best market, and how to market and how to meet those demands, had better give up the business.

To the farmer the idea of carrying a cow, much or otherwise, is an absurdity, but to dairymen who have highly bred cows, who take a pride in their business and get the top price of the market for their produce, it is a matter of moment, in that it is known to increase the milk flow and the butter produce by ten to twenty per cent.

Prof. Beal—now our first authority on grasses—says of Orchard grass that it is especially valuable to sow on strong land with other grasses and clovers for pasture. For meadow it is also good in mixtures; but many farmers allow it to get too nearly ripe before cutting. It blooms three weeks before Timothy and very soon becomes harsh and woody.

It is said that a compound of one part sugar, one part nitre, and two parts of the best Spanish salt, beaten together into a fine powder and mixed thoroughly with the butter in the proportion of one ounce to the pound, would keep the butter in every respect sweet and sound during two years. It is also said to impart a rich marrowy flavor that no other butter ever acquires, and tastes very little of the salt.

A Scotch sheriff has recently ruled that a bull is a wild animal, and that therefore his owner is responsible for any damage the animal may do, if he breaks loose. "If a man kept a dog or cat, or any other domestic animal, he was only only liable in the ordinary manner; but a man who kept a bull kept it at his peril, because it was recognized by the law as a wild animal. By this liability in keeping a wild animal he must secure it so that it can do no harm whatever."

Make the farm a neat and attractive place if you would have boys and young men attracted by it. Remove the rubbish and drain wet places and ponds, and then you will perform the required labor at less expense than when you were annoyed by it, or when you were wading through mud. Stumps and bushes cleared from your fields will make better and cheaper cultivation. A stony field will become greatly improved by converting the stones into stone walls, and make easier plowing. Everything on the premises may be made to assume a neat appearance.

To Bit a Colt.

The true way to bit a colt is not to bit him at all; that is, let him bit himself. When my colts are one year old, I begin to teach them to hold the bit in their mouth. The bit is of pine, some half inch in diameter and five inches in length. This piece of soft pine is held in the mouth by a cord tied to either end, and fastened on the head, back of the ears. The colt loves to have the bit in his mouth, because it enables him to bring forward the saliva process. He will bit, and work it over in his mouth, and enjoys it hugely. He will welcome it, and will actually reache out and open his mouth for it, as a trained horse will for a bit. After a few days, you can tie strings making miniature reins to this bit, and teach the colt the proper use of it. When this is done he is ready for the regular steel bit. Put your bridle on with a leather bit, large and plant throw your check-line, if your bridle has one attached, into the pigsty; get into your wagon and drive off. This is all the "bit ing" a colt needs. Treated in this way, he will have lively, yielding, sensitive mouth. He will take the bit bravely when working up to his speed, but yield readily to the driver's will. A horse, bitted in this sensible way, can be driven a forty clip with the lines held in one hand, or be lifted over a five-barred gate with the strength of a single wrist. If you do not believe it, try it and see.

ON THE REBOUND.

Of course we met the winter through
At balls and teas, but then, you know,
I thought the world of Ned Carew,
Who'd been devoted, and I knew
Tom was in love with Kittie Snow.

So Tuesday night at Kittie's ball,
When they announced she was engaged
To Ned Carew, I thought I'd fall
Or faint. I really can't recall
When I've been so stunned or enraged!

She's such a scheming girl, and then,
Oh, lots of times, I've heard Ned say
He thought she looked so silly when
She tried to flirt! Oh, dear, some men
Can't keep the same mind through the day!

Well, Wednesday came, and, as 'twas Lent
And I was blue about it all,
I thought the day would be best spent
In some good work, and so I went
To take flowers to the hospital.

And, passing by, who should I see,
As at their door, with all my flowers
I stood, but Tom! He said that he Thought time best spent in charity.
I said those were my happiest hours.

Well, that began it. Then we found
Our tastes alike in everything.
We think respect's the proper ground
For love, and ours is strong and sound.

Mine's twice as big as Kittie's ring!

HOW HE WAS AVENGED

By C. W. Doyle.

A Young Hunter Astonishes a Native by His Bravery and the Accuracy of His Aim.

The travelers from beyond Moradabad having reached Kaladoongie were discovered to be men of consequence by the thanadar and were invited by him to join the circle of the great round his fire on the evening of their arrival. It was very warm, and the dismal silence was only accented by the distant howl of a lonely jackal. The sheet lightning flickered fitfully over the foothills, mocking the gasping Terai with its faint promise of a coming change.

The conversation round the fire flagged, and the hookah passed languidly from hand to hand. Those present would have retired to sleep had sleep been possible, but as that was a consummation not easily attained at this season of the year they preferred their present miseries to those that come in the wakeful night watches when the Terai is athirst. Ram Deen's arrival was a nightly boon to those who were wont to assemble round the thanadar's fire. There was always the possibility of his having news, and, besides, men seemed to acquire fresh vitality from contact with his vigorous personality. The strangers were especially grateful for his arrival, and when he had taken his usual place beside the fire the hookah was at once passed to him.

"Any tidings coach wan ji?" inquired the thanadar.

"None, sahib, save that the great frog in the well at Lal Kooah—who is as old as the well and wiser than most men—gave voice just ere I started, and the bunnia said it was a sure sign of rain within two days, as the frog's warning had never been known to fail."

"Nana Debi send it be so," exclaimed the little carrier, "for my bullocks be starved for the lack of green food, and bhoosa (chaff) is past my means."

"Thou shouldst not complain, Goor Dutt," said Ram Deen, with a smile. "Their very leanness is thy passport through the jungle. Fatter kine had been devoured and their driver with them long ere this."

Hint of danger that might be encountered in the jungle having thus been given, one of the strangers was moved to ask concerning the lame tiger of Huldwani, part of whose biography they had heard from Ram Deen at Lal Kooah on the previous day.

"Coach wan ji, wast thou not afraid to carry the mail after the slaying of thy hostler, Nandha?"

"Those who carry the queen's mail may not stop for fear. Nevertheless fear rode with me a day and a night after the death of Nandha."

"It is a great telling," said the little carrier, nodding at the wayfarers, while Ram Deen "drank tobacco."

When Ram Deen had passed the hookah to his neighbor, he went on: "Brothers, on the day that Nandha was carried off by the tiger I sent word to the postmaster of Naini Tal concerning the killing, and the outgoing mail brought me word that the sircar (government) would send me help. Ye know that a tiger kills not two days in succession. So I had no fear when I traversed the road to and from Lal Kooah till the second day after the slaying of Nandha. Ere I started on that morning the munshi told me to drive to the dak bungalow for a sahib who had been sent to slay the slayer of men. Brothers, when I went to the dak bungalow there came forth to me a man child—a Fariugi—whose chin was as smooth as the palm of my hand.

"I would have laughed, but that I thought of the tiger that I knew would be waiting for us, and, taking pity on him, I said: 'The jungle hereabouts is full of wild fowl, sahib, and 'twere pity, when shikar is so plentiful, you should waste this morning looking for a budmash tiger who will not come forth for two days as yet.' He answered me never a word, but went into the dak bungalow for something he had forgotten, and while he was gone his butler spake to me, saying: 'Coach wan, make no mistake; thy life depends upon thy doing the sahib's bidding. He is a very Rustum, and he knoweth not fear, for all he is so young.' 'He is a man after my own heart, then, sirdar; but, mashallah, I would he had a beard!' I replied.

"Presently the young sahib came forth with an empty bottle in one hand and a gun in the other. Throwing the bottle into the air, he shattered it with a bullet ere it reached the ground. Startled by the report, a jackal fled from the rear of the cookhouse toward the jungle, and the sahib stopped its flight with another bullet. Then, replenishing his gun, he took his seat beside me on the mail cart, saying, 'Blow on thy bugle, coach wan, and announce our coming to Shere Bahadoor, his majesty the tiger.'

"It was a brave jawan (youth), brothers, but he was very young, and belike he had a mother, so I swore in my beard to save him whatever might befall. As we proceeded he questioned me concerning the killing of Nandha, speaking lightly as one who goeth to shoot black partridge.

"'He is lame, coach wan, and will doubtless be waiting for us by the Bore bridge,' said the sahib. 'As soon as he appears stay the horses for an instant while I get off the mail cart, and then return when your horses will let you.'

"'Bethink thee, sahib,' I answered; 'the lame one of Huldwani is old and cunning. It is no fawn thou seekest this morning. Perchance the sircar will dispatch some great shikari to help thee in this hunting. Gunga send we may not meet the tiger, but if we should, shame befall me if I permit thee to leave the mail cart while the horses are able to run!'

"For answer, my brothers, the sahib flushed red and, calling me a coward, he drove his elbow into my stomach with such force that the reins fell from my hands. Taking them up, the while I fought for my breath, he turned the horses round, saying: 'A jackal may not hunt a tiger! I have need of a man with me this morning, and Goor Deen, my butler, shall take thy place.'

"'The sahib, being a man, will not blacken my face in the eyes of Kaladoongie,' I said. 'I spake for thy sake, sahib, but I will drive thee to Jehandum an thou wilt, for no man hath ever called me coward before.' Then the sahib looked in my face, as I tucked the ends of my beard under my puggri, and, seeing that my eyes met his four square, he gave up the reins to me, saying, 'If thou playest me false, I will kill thee like a dog,' and he showed me the hilt of a pistol that he had in his pocket. We spake no more together, but when we came to the Bore bridge I shook the jungle with a blast from my bugle.

"'Shabash, coach wan!' exclaimed the sahib. 'Thou art a man indeed and shalt have Shere Bahadoor's skin as recompense for the hurt to thy stomach. Bid him come again.'

"Half a mile beyond the bridge, as we sped along the level road above the river, I again blew upon the bugle. The sound had scarcely ceased when we heard the angry roar of a charging tiger.

"'Stop!' exclaimed the sahib, and I threw the frightened horses on their haunches, while he leaped to the ground. Then, while the horses flew along the road, I looked back over my shoulder and beheld the Lame One bound to the middle of the road, and the sahib blew on his fingers as one would whistle to a dog. The great beast stopped on the instant and crouched to the ground, ready to spring on the sahib as he advanced toward it and I prayed to Nana Debi to befriend the young fool.

"When he was within 30 paces or so from the tiger, the sahib halted and brought the gun to his shoulder. The next instant there was the crack of a rifle, and the Lame One leaped straight into the air.

"I knew the tiger was dead, and immediately thereafter the mail cart ran into the bank and spilled me on the road. Leaving the stunned horses tied to a tree, I proceeded to seek the sahib. Wah ji, wah, brothers, we must pay taxes to the Faringis until we can raise sons like theirs. When I joined the boy sahib, he was smoking and taking the measure of the tiger with a tape! His bullet had struck the beast between the eyes, and the Lame One had died at the hands of a man."

Anecdote of Heureaux.

Some years ago a conspiracy headed by several prominent young men of the Santo Domingo republic, who hoped to gain wealth and position through the death of Heureaux, attempted to take his life and start a revolution. Their plot was cleverly planned and seemingly sure of success, for the president showed no suspicions, continuing his customary mode of life, walking and driving throughout the city as usual without guards, although at that time he was fully posted in every detail of their scheme, and when their plans were fully matured and their time for action at hand he had them all arrested and thrown into the dungeons of the old fortifications.

The penalty for crimes of this sort is always death. So soon after their arrest they were drawn up in line on the old parade grounds within the walls of the old fort and told to prepare for death, after which the firing squad lined up in front of them and were ordered to fire. As they did so one man fell.

The president, who was a witness, then stepped forward and said: "My children, you have attempted to ruin your country and take my life, and for this you are legally subject to death, but I do not want to see you die so young. That man on the ground had to give up his life to pay the penalty for his misdeeds. If you ever plot against me again, you will be where he is. Look at him, remember what I have said and then go, for you are free."

"DEAR FRIEND—I feel it my duty to express my gratitude and thanks to you for what your medicine has done for me. I was very miserable and losing flesh very fast, had bladder trouble, fluttering pains about the heart and would get so dizzy and suffered with painful menstruation. I was reading in a paper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, so I wrote to you and after taking two bottles I felt like a new person. Your Vegetable Compound has entirely cured me and I cannot praise it enough."—MRS. J. O. BARNARD, MILLTOWN, WASHINGTON Co., ME.

An Iowa Woman's Convincing Statement.

"I tried three doctors, and the last one said nothing but an operation would help me. My trouble was profuse flowing; sometimes I would think I would flow to death. I was so weak that the least work would tire me. Reading of so many being cured by your medicine, I made up my mind to write to you for advice, and I am so glad that I did. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills and followed your directions, and am now well and strong. I shall recommend your medicine to all, for it saved my life."—Miss A. P., Box 21 ABBOTT, IOWA.

BETWEEN SEASONS.

FASHION WRITERS TALK OF LINGERIE AT THIS SEASON.

Hints of Loosened Draperies—Knickers are Narrow—White Silk Wash Skirt—Seperate Waists and Skirts—Infinite Variety in Tucking and Cording.

Whether to have one's stays done to order, or buy them ready-made? If the average woman could afford the price of a few custom done corsets a year, and if corsetmakers always were sure to do the right thing in the way of fitting there would be no question that any woman with pretensions to taste should have her stays made for her individually, even at the sacrifice of one or two gowns or hats from a season's allowance. Corsetmakers are not, however, certain to produce stays which make the most of one's figure. Indeed, they are likely not to do so, if one herself is unfamiliar with her own lines. I know that fashion writers for years have dwelt upon the need that every woman has to wear custom-cut corsets, but how are you to find precisely the person who can fit you

More and more it seems apparent to me that one must understand her peculiarities, and what needs to be done to preserve or offset them. Fortified with this knowledge, she may buy ready-made stays, if her figure is of machine's—which are supposedly ideal—measurements. Or she can search until she comes upon a Madame who knows how to corset her admirably.

Lingerie Must Fit.

Hints of loosened draperies come over the sea from the centre of fashion. But they are vague, and the probability is that for a long time to some, fashion will call for the most perfect and graceful outline of the feminine self which taste permits. It was an artist who discovered that the human form should be drawn in every picture before the drapery is arranged over it. Fashion has required positively for more than a year that woman's lingerie shall fit her accurately. From the knitted or spun silk undervest to the limp petticoat, the garments shall be made with two objects: First precise outline: second, the beautifying effect. Women of means have had extraordinary vantage in this mode over their fellows. A woman of modest income might entertain the best ideas in the world about what her lingerie should be, and yet remain unable to carry them out. Really, to dress properly under one's princess dress, or gown trimmed in princess effect, every article should be made with reference to it, and one's usual lingerie given to the poor. In the case of rich women, this not infrequently is done, though women of more means than imagination were likely to sell even their undergarments to the old clothes woman for a few miserable dollars.

Time to Select.

There is time now, before one must decide finally upon her fall clothes, to select at least several new pieces of lingerie to be worn on special occasions, if one yet has old-style garments which she must wear out. Nothing new is to be said of the undervest. It may be repeated that the vest is of lisle thread, when knitted silk cannot be afforded. Of finest spun silk, when that may be. And trimmed with a scant frill of narrow lace all around the low neck, just above the drawing string. Of corset covers there is something imperative. Unless a woman is thin—and few are—at the belt line, she should not wear a cover to a stay which comes below the waist. All the new French corset covers round away from the belt line in bolero fashion in front, and just meet it at the back. A width of lace edges the cover, which is from white silk, nainsook or lingerie lawn.

This cut has not appeared in the less expensive goods sold in the shops. I should say that the best way to secure, say, half a dozen of these engaging garments is to buy one French model of fine cambric, and have it duplicated by some women who makes a specialty of fine white sewing, yet does not charge so much as one must pay for several covers of French make. By the way, the latest lingeries closes at the seams with beading, which a woman understands to mean narrow lace inserting through which ribbon may and should be run. An infinitesimal puffing takes the place of the tucking so long and charmingly in vogue

Narrow Knickers.

Knickers are as narrow as possible and short. In some instances they are hardly more than row on row of lace with beading to join the lengths. But this recklessness again is for the mondaine, though the close, brief style may be indulged in by any woman w does her own sewing or who can find that jewel—the maker of fine white things after a suggestion. Umbrella knickers are out of fashion. Even small yokes are under the ban, on knickers and petticoats, too. The smallest possible gathering of the body of the garment is considered too bulky for the princess figure and the part woman must play at present. Petticoats, whether of silk or muslin, are fited as much as outside skirts. But they have no binding at the belt. A tiny width of the garment is turned back and faced, and the peticoat buttons twice at the back. Knickers are not precisely so close at the waist line as the petticoat. The drawing ribbon still is allowed for them. But it must be used warily.

Slightly Starched.

Starch is applied to women's petticoats only slightly; then to the deep flounce. Your woman of fashion would think it a crime worthy of sad punishment for a laundress to starch her petticoats above the frills. So hard is it to keep a set of lawn petticoats in wearing trim that more than one woman has forsaken lawn altogether and taken up with silk; with her light gowns she likes petticoats of white India silk or white pongee, the latter rather newly and deservedly in favor. The white silk wash skirt, as any other, is cut to shape and buttoned without a binding at the belt. It has three full twelve-inch flounces at the bottom, all gathered into the same heading, so that when the wearer holds up her skirts to protect them she seems to be wearing three white silk petticoats. The outer frill, again, is trimmed with three four-inch ruffles. And the garment launders beautifully. For common wear a fitted skirt of light weight tinted silk (some brocades are good), even satin, is desirable. But have a good pattern before you start in! Know precisely that the garment will suit you, though you have to use inexpensive material.

Once again, after a short period of rest on the subject, comes up the topic of whether separate waists and skirts are going to be fashionable this winter. The dressmakers and tailors wish us to believe that the style is completely out, and that all entire costumes will be made with skirt and waist of the same material, even in cloth, when there is a coat also of the same material. One reason for the rumor is that polonaise and princess gowns are to be fashionable this year. Of course, with such gowns a separate waist is absolutely impossible.

Seperate Waists and Skirts.

The white satin and white taffeta silk waists will be fashionable again. There is a little fullness directly in the front, but this is supposed to be gathered in under the belt. Almost all the waists have a yoke effect and a little lace edging around the front of the waist below the yoke. They have elaborate collars of the same material as the waist, cut behind the ears in points so they can be turned over. These are edged with lace, and a lace bow is additional, but on many of the waists there is simply a bow of the same material as the waist, the ends of which are trimmed with lace.

Tucked or Corded.

All waists are tucked or corded, and there is an infinite variety in the widths of the tucks. Some are minute, others wide. There are even some waists that show the old-fashioned box-pleats once again, but these require to be made carefully or they will look bulky and clumsy. They are at all times trying to stout figures. A stout woman will do well, if she has a silk waist made, to have always a boned and fitted linin . and, besides, it is best to have three seams in the back, one in the middle of the back and at the side. These seams break the width, and if sufficient curve is given to the sire seams it really makes the figure much more tapering than might be believed possible.

A Riding Habit.

Proper Drying of Stockings.

The best way to insure woolen stockings from shrinking, is to dry them on stocking boards. The next best is to stretch them well, put a smooth, round stone into each one, and pin the stocking to the line, with the top spread out as much as the size permits. Neither silk nor woolen stockings should be ironed with hot irons. They may be pressed with warm ones on their wrong sides, but their appearance on the feet is quite as good if, while they are in disuse, they are rolled up in pairs with the toes folded in and the top of one slipped over the roll.

How to Cook Lamb Chops.

Dainty lamb chops require but a moment's cooking, and, unless care be taken, will dry quickly over the fire. They should be turned repeatedly, and when done seasoned with pepper, salt butter. Serve with French peas.

PUDDLERS DISSATISFIED.

Claim the Scale Should Have Been Advanced.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Sept. 20.—[By Associated Press]—Dissatisfaction over wages among the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers may cause a split in that organization. The men are dissatisfied over the recent settlement of wages at the bi-monthly meeting of the representatives of the association, who decided to let wages remain as they are for the next two months. The puddlers claim the puddling rate should have been advanced from $5 to $6 and better. Puddlers are talking of withdrawing from the association at once, and there is to be a meeting of those interested in Pittsburg next Saturday night, when 600 millworkers will be present and discuss what action shall be taken.

NEW MILEAGE BOOKS.

The W. & L. E. is Growing a Little Independent.

The Wheeling & Lake Erie officials announced yesterday afternoon that it had been arranged that they should enter the 5,000 mile photograph interchangeable mileage book of the Central Passenger Association. A few days ago it was announced that for the first time the W. & L. E. had entered the Central Passenger Association mileage book. Now they have gone a little further and are in on the 5,000 mile book. This puts the road in line with the territory in which it operates. Some of the roads along the lakes, the Lake Shore for instance, have a dislike for the regular mileage book of the C. P. A., and have adopted the northern book, but the W. & L. E., which formerlly hewed to the line laid down by the Lake Shore, is growing independent tle of late, and is now thinking for s latest action is the most interesting.—veland Leader.

NATURAL GAS.

Notice to the Citizens of Massillon.

In order to introduce into all homes in the city of Massillon, in the shortest possible time, the use of natural gas The East Ohio Gas Company will give a discount from the present fixed rates of five cents for each one thousand cubic feet of gas used for domestic purposes during the year commencing July 1st, 1899, and ending July 1st, 1900. As the company is making all house connections at actual cost of materials and labor, it believes that this saving in the price of gas will go largely towards the expense of piping the houses, and will give the company the advantage of having every citizen (even the poorest) as a consumer; thus affording to all the best and cheapest fuel. To encourage the use of gas by manufacturers special rates will be given on application at the office.

MANUFACTURERS TAKING SPACE.

More Machinery Than Ever at the Big Stark County Fair.

CONTRACTING FOR THE PLACES

In Which Their Wares will be Exhibited—Grand Stand Being Constructed for Concert Occasions at the Fair Grounds.

The arrangements for the coming Stark county fair are going on rapidly, and Secretary Lehman is kept busy almost night and day. The fair this year will, in many respects, surpass all efforts of previous years. The old fair days, when the whirr of wheels and puffing of engines were the most conspicuous of the many attractions, will be revived. The manufacturers are going to be on hand in greater force than ever. Large space has been contracted for by dozens of concerns of Canton, Massillon and other cities. A tent 100x80 feet will protect exhibits of the smaller machines and implements.

Great interest centers in the Grand Army band concert which will be given Wednesday evening, September 28. The big band and the cornet soloists, Knoll and McNeil, will give the concert and next morning leave for Spokane, Washington. The following evening the Massillon Military band will occupy the grand stand. The stand, by the way, is now in course of construction, at a point southeast of the grand stand. The band stand will be of turtle back design which is considered the best form of stand.

Merchants desiring to exhibit their wares get space absolutely free and all are extended a cordial invitation to bring their merchandise and take advantage of the opportunity to advertise.

Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident of which John Oliver, of Philadelphia, was the subject, is narrated by him as follows: "I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back, no appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Physicians had given me up. Fortunately, a friend advised trying Electric Bitters, and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50c per bottle at Z. T. Baltzly's drug store.
